Dairymen Awards Banquet Honors Leaders In Dairy Industry

MICHELLE RANCK

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Three awards honored members of agriculture for their dedication, leadership, and promotion of the dairy industry at the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association annual awards banquet. The event on Wednesday evening was conducted in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders' Conference here at the Holiday Inn. More than 250 people attended the evening banquet.

Following dinner, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Melinda Wolfe delivered a speech inspired by her father and his dreams of owning his own dairy farm.

Additionally, members of the state 4-H judging team were given a lifetime membership to National Dairy Shrine during the evening.

Donald Koontz, Fredonia, Elsie Wolff, Quarryville, and Philip Wagner, Franklin County, were selected for skills at their jobs and tireless dedication to the dairy industry, according to David Smith, executive secretary, Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association.

Donald A. Koontz, Fredonia, was honored with the Charles E. Cowan Award. A graduate of Delaware Valley College with a degree in dairy husbandry, Koontz spent several years as a herd manager for Walbe Farms before purchasing his current farm in Mercer County.

A 4-H dairy club leader, Koontz is a nationally approved

Stakeholder Breakfast Focuses On Dairy Success Stories

GRANTVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — One day, David Zimmerman and wife Joyce realized what they had simply wasn't adequate.

The stanchion pipeline built in 1968, which seemed easy and adequate for the dairy more than three decades ago, started to look rather old.

A son who worked as an auto mechanic and a daughter who worked at a nursery wanted to come back and help on the farm.

David said that two families couldn't be supported on 80 cows. With help from a consultant and financial assistance from a Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholder program, the herd continues to expand to about 600-650 cows, enough "for the next generation," Zimmerman said.

David farms with wife Joyce and five children, Dale, 23; Sharon, 30; James, 27; Joann, 21; and Kathy, 13, on Meadowview Farm near Reinholds.

David spoke Thursday morning about the Stakeholder's program, the Business Planning Assistance Program (BPAP), at the 2000 Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholder's Conference Breakfast at the Grantville Holiday Inn.

Dairy producers in the capitol region will notice some changes in the organization of extension staff responsibilities for dairy programs.

During the past year, extension staff members have been actively meeting to assess dairy program needs, identify resources, plan upcoming regional events, and share ideas and information to stay up to date on important dairy industry issues.

Our first successful regional events were two employee-training programs this past spring. The March feeder's and milker's schools were warmly received and positively evaluated by participants. Spurred on by the interest and enthusiasm of participants, we planned 13 computer training sessions to improve information management skills, five employee training schools (two for feeders, one for milkers, and two for transition cow managers), and a regional DairyWorks seminar for dairy farm managers.

Most exciting of all are the new people joining our team!

Vinton Smith joined our team to serve as multicounty dairy management agent in Cumber-

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO

December 13, 2000

Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids lost more ground due as beneficial snow cover continued to fall over winter wheat growing areas. Some export disappointments weighed on wheat bids as reports show Turkey and Pakistan sold some various classes of wheat to Afghanistan. Corn bids moved slightly higher on fund buying and carryover strength from yesterday's substantial export purchase. Not much change in soybean bids, today, soybean meal prices declined, favorable weather conditions are reported in South American bean areas, and export sales remain very slow this week. However, indications that China bought nearly 4 million bushels of US soybeans, limited losses.

Wheat steady to 3 cents lower. Corn 1 to 2 cents higher. Sorghum 3 cents higher. Soybeans unchanged.

O CHRISTMAS TREE?

In The Christmas Tree Book, by Phillip V. Snyder (Viking, 1976), the author notes that in the 14th and 15th centuries, the popular miracle play for Christmas Eve was the story of Adam and Eve. Stage props for the occasion included an evergreen tree hung with apples, dramatically recalling the Paradise Tree and the lost innocence of Eden. By the 16th century, German families were bringing evergreen Christbaume ("Christ trees") into their homes on Christmas Eve and decorating them with cookies and fruit. This tradition later extended to England and America, but even into the late 1800s, the practice was more rare than common.

... at any moment, I might rediscover reason to rejoice.

-Castellozo

TIP OF THE WEEK

Keep a piece of chalk with your stored silver; it absorbs moisture and prevents tarnish.

CHRISTMAS CAKE

1 cup (2 sticks) butter
2 cups sugar
3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
8 egg whites
1 cup milk

Cream butter and sugar. Sift together flour and baking powder and add to creamed butter. Beat egg whites. Add half of the milk to the batter, then fold in egg whites. Add remaining milk, only as needed to

Quality To Shoot For

As we sat with some dairy farmers last week at the Lancaster DHIA meeting, talk, as it usually does, turned to the price of milk. "It could be better," said one farmer. And others agreed. And we agree.

Dairy farmers today are participating in a very competitive marketplace. Not every farmer that is shipping into a federal order that uses multiple component pricing is getting the same price. That's because some farmers are producing component and quality levels that are above average, and others are producing below average.

Dr. Ken Bailey, extension milk marketing specialist at Penn State, recently indicated that the component price in your milk check can represent in some cases 80 to 90 percent of the total. The "range" in the component price received by farmers can be as high as $2/CWT. The "range" in quality prices received can be as high as $0.40/CWT.

We think the price for milk should be higher all the way around. But at least farmers can focus on what they can control — volume, components, and quality.

At the same meeting, Gary and Jenny Bowman were honored for their low SCC count of 75,000. Now that's quality to shoot for.

We commend the Bowmans and all dairy farmers who continue to do such a superb job of providing consumers with quality milk at a very reasonable price. Often so reasonable they must go out of business because the profit margin is so low.

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

To Look At Economics Of Alfalfa Seed

How much is the new high technology alfalfa seed variety worth?

Can you afford to stay with the old type varieties, which are not designed to combat an insect or disease?

According to Dr. Marvin Hall, Penn State extension forage specialist, you may be able to buy some older alfalfa varieties for one-third the cost of the newer varieties, but in the long run you are not really saving money!

Assuming a cost of $3 per pound for newer, highly disease resistant seed and $1 per pound for an older seed, seeding rate of 15 pounds per acre and $80 per ton value of hay, the newer variety of seed would generate almost $300 additional income per acre over a four-year period. This is because of increased production in the third and fourth years.

In addition to the new varieties being higher yielding and more disease resistant than the older varieties, they also increase the life expectancy of the alfalfa stand. The longer the stand can remain productive, the more years you have to spread out the cost of establishment.

Remember, the seed cost is really a very small part of the total cost of producing alfalfa. Information on the performance of alfalfa varieties is available at your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office. Ask for the Forage Trail Report.

To Protect Against Insects

As winter approaches, many insects are searching for a warm, sheltered location to be protected from the cold, according to Dr. Timothy Elkner, Lancaster County extension horticultural agent.

Many people discover that these insects find their homes the ideal spot for a winter vacation. The best control method is to seal insects out in the first place. Inspect the perimeter of your house for cracks, especially those at or just above ground level. Tiny pests can slip unnoticed through holes around utility cables and windows. Seal all openings you find.

Besides shelter, some invading insects are also looking for secure nesting sites. To make your home less accessible to them, keep house-hugging shrubs trimmed. Move mulch away from the foundation. Do not stack firewood against the house and inspect fireplace logs for hitchhiking insects before bringing them in.

To Protect Against Mice

Fall also is the time when mice seek warmer shelter and a guaranteed food supply, reported Dr. Timothy Elkner, Lancaster County extension horticultural agent.

These tiny rodents cause damage with their gnawing and spoil food supplies with their droppings. Mice are excellent climbers and they can scale vertical surfaces, scamper across pipes and power lines, and squeeze through holes as small as a fourth of an inch in diameter.

Dark, grain-size droppings in cabinets and drawers are a sign that mice are in the house. Hoarded food piles and nests of shredded paper or cloth are further evidence.

Prevention is the best control. Seal all entries into the house. Steel wool stuffed firmly into a small opening makes a good temporary barrier against mice.

It is also helpful to limit their potential food sources. Store pet food and bird seed in sealed containers and clean up spills immediately.

If mice are living in your house, set traps in areas where they are active, particularly along walls and on ledges. Bait the traps with peanut butter, bacon, or milk chocolate. Then check the trap daily to dispose of the catch and renew the bait.

Poison baits are not recommended for homes. They present a danger to children and dead mice may end up behind walls or under floors.

STRONG ARM

Background Scripture:
Luke 1:39-56.

Devotional Reading:
Psalms 34:1-3.

Although Mary had overcome her doubts and committed herself to God's purpose — "I am the Lord's servant; as you have spoken, so be it" (NEB) — she doubtless was confused and wanted help in understanding what this was all about. Told by the angel Gabriel that her "kinswoman Elizabeth in her old age has also conceived a son" and was in her sixth month of pregnancy, Mary immediately makes a journey to see her kinswoman, no doubt hopeful that she can help her understand what Gabriel told her.

Arriving in Ein Karem (the traditional home of John the Baptist's parents), she no sooner entered the house and greeted her kinswoman than Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit and proclaimed to Mary: "Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb! And why is this granted me, that the mother of my Lord should come to me?" (1:41-43).

Luke does not tell us that Elizabeth knew anything about Mary's visit from Gabriel, so this pronouncement and the sensation of the unborn John leaping in her womb comes to her by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. Elizabeth was able to salute Mary and her unborn son because she was open to the leading of God's Spirit.

Sometimes, I have found, when we are attuned to God's presence, we can "know" something that we do not know. There is another factor that may have opened Elizabeth to the Spirit: she was humble — "And why is this granted me that the mother of my Lord should come to me?"

Magnificat!

Mary's response to Elizabeth is also probably an inspiration from the Holy Spirit. This is not the kind of utterance one might expect from a humble, young country girl: "My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior" (1:46,47).

If you are familiar with the prayer of Hannah in 1 Samuel 2:1-10, you will find Mary's utterance quite similar in form and content. The passage in Luke is often referred as the Magnificat, the Latin form of the word, "magnifies." The Jerusalem Bible renders this as "My soul proclaims the greatness of the Lord..."

Phillips reads it as "My heart is overflowing with praise of my Lord" and the New English Bible as "Tell out, my soul, the greatness of the Lord." This is not something Mary wrote on the back of an envelope and memorized on her journey to Ein Karem. It is of God.

Mary's song is a message, not for the rich and famous, the VIP's, the movers and shakers. It is a message for the same people to whom her son would later address his beatitudes, the meek and lowly. Her ecstatic song is one of wonder and awe for what the mighty God has done in her humble life: "he has regarded the low estate of his handmaid." "For he who is mighty has done great things for me, and holy is his name" (1:49).

But the message of Mary's Magnificat is also a somber warning to those who are not poor and lowly. When the power of God's arm is unleashed in the world, this is what happens: (1)

"he has scattered the proud in the imagination of their own hearts"; (2) "he has put down the mighty from their thrones"; (3) "and exalted those of low degree"; (4) "he has filled the hungry with good things"; (5) "and the rich he has sent empty away".

Promised By God

No one should be particularly surprised at this shattering news in Mary's song, for all these things have been promised by God from the very beginning: "He has helped his servant Israel in remembrance of his mercy, as he spoke to our fathers, to Abraham and to his posterity for ever" (1:54,55). This is the promise of the covenant which God gave to Abraham (see Genesis 17:7; 18:18; Micah 7:20), the promise fulfilled in Jesus Christ.

It may be difficult for us to take assurance in God's promises to us when, all about us, there is tyranny visited upon the powerless, injustice to those who cannot pay for justice, and the poor getting poorer and the rich getting richer. But if we look at the history of our world we will see that God's covenant promises are fulfilled in the long run.

The Caesars, Holy Roman Emperors, Ghengis Khans, Napoleons, Hitlers, and Stalins have their day but, in God's sight, it is only a day. God's strong arm guarantees that.

Lancaster Farming Staff
QUARRYVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — The Pennsylvania Tobacco Marketing Association has a new location for the auction.

Plans are under way to house the tobacco auction at the Solanco Fairgrounds in Quarryville.

According to Dennis Hess, auction manager, work needs to be done at the site, including installing loading docks. But a tentative sale has been set for the first Wednesday or Thursday in January (Jan. 3 or 4). A phone number and an exact auction date and time will be provided in the weeks ahead.

Hess noted, "Some buyers will support us." Private purchase of tobacco has been occurring the past several weeks.

Through private sales, some tobacco is moving at a fairly good price, Hess noted. He's heard growers are receiving $1.00-$1.25 per pound.

Hess said a private buyer is purchasing Maryland 609 type for a cigarette made entirely from tobacco grown here.

However, growers should keep in mind that if they are association members, they must ensure that the association receives 3 cents per pound on all tobacco sold privately or processed.

Last year, growers received about 42 cents per pound if the signed up for the money from the tobacco industry settlement. This year, the price said Hess is "considerably less." The settlement checks are going in the mail the first couple days in January, noted Hess.

Growers should make sure they grade the tobacco properly, noted Hess, and keep the moisture levels down. They should also keep bales light. The ideal weight for tobacco bales is between 50-60 pounds. If they are packed together and become too heavy, the tobacco can become damaged, especially if wet.

Also, for growers who experienced blue mold problems in tobacco, that tobacco should be graded separately, said Hess.

For more information about the auction, contact Hess at (717) 626-6970.

Philly Farmers' Markets Offer Great Opportunities

PHILADELPHIA — You might want to think about taking advantage of new opportunities to increase your farm income by selling at some of the outdoor farmers' markets springing up here.

More than 30 farmers already benefit from profits from markets in Philadelphia.

Farmers who sell at farmers' markets report that people in cities are used to paying more for produce, and a farmer can get good prices and generate positive returns — more than enough to cover transportation and other costs. Farmers can expect average sales of more than $600 during a four-hour market.

The first thing Ben Franklin did when he arrived in Philadelphia was buy three loaves of bread at Philadelphia's original farmers' market. Next summer, that same market will be resurrected at Second and Market Streets, heralding a return to our roots.

For more information about this and other market opportunities, contact the Farmers' Market Trust at (215) 568-0830 or (800) 417-9499. The Philadelphia-based Farmers' Market Trust operates an extensive network of farmers' markets and is eager to talk with farmers interested in trying markets.

Creating farmers' markets is one proven way to sustain farming. They provide a major sales outlet for agricultural producers, supporting a growing number of family farms.

Farmers' markets help farmers increase farm income, at the same time that they provide communities with locally grown, fresh produce. They improve nutrition and boost the local farm economy. They also are proving to be potent ways to recreate a sense of community.

Each year, new outdoor farmers' markets spring up across this region. According to the National Farmers Market Directory, there are 2,863 farmers' markets operating nationwide — a number that has increased by 63 percent in the last six years.

State and federal agriculture departments fund Farmers' Market Nutrition Program coupons for qualified mothers, infants, and children to purchase fruits and vegetables at farmers' markets. In Pennsylvania, those programs help families as well as seniors living on limited incomes buy nutritious food at farmers' markets.

Consumers, great chefs and passionate community activists throughout our region can find joy in the bounty that our local farmers produce. We are simple steps away from being reconnected with the fertile earth that grows our food. Working together, we can reclaim our land and give thanks to our bounty.

Mix square bales of hay faster with new features.

Model 4000 MIXER

Struck-level capacities of 205, 305 and 380 cubic feet. Optional side extensions provide struck-level capacities of 232, 343 and 428 cubic feet.

For really tough hay, add knives made from 1/4-inch Quadra-Shark™ steel. The through-hardened knives feature scalloped cutting edges for reduced torque.

Quadra Shark™ is a trademark of Patz Sales, Inc.

Choose stationary, trailer mounted or truck-mounted models.

- ▲ New tub design plus full-length breaker bar improves mixing with less power so you can feed more hay. A 3/8-inch bottom pan adds extra service life. Welds are strong and tolerances precise for stronger side walls. You get more sturdiness and durability in a new Model 4000 Mixer. New design of transition area in lower auger improves feed flow and reduces torque.
- ▲ New design of discharge door frame allows a more-complete mix of ration. Choose from belt or auger discharges. Choose various discharge lengths. Increase operator convenience and reduce feeding time with optional hydraulic height control of discharge.
- ▲ Improved drive train provides reliable performance. A shear bolt helps protect the planetary and lower-auger roller chain and sprockets.

Butter Prices Weaken Temporarily

- Butter dropped $0.30/lb on Friday
- Cheese prices weaken slightly
- Cheese continues into the CCC

Butter prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange took a hit this Friday dropping from $1.8525 per pound on Monday, December 4 to $1.500 by Friday, December 8. This should not represent a market consensus on price movement, however, since it likely reflected short-run market conditions.

USDA described the butter market this week in their weekly Dairy Market News as, "unsettled with a weak undertone." However, USDA also noted that cream demand is very high this time of year and very little fresh butter is being made. And, "producers and handlers continue to report excellent butter demand." Data suggests that American consumers have been loading up on high fat products this year. That means very strong demand for cream, which of course is used to make butter. As a result, butter makers have been pulling frozen product out of inventory to meet short term needs. USDA reports that many butter producers are reporting that year-end inventories will be very low, the lowest in many years.

So, the jury is not yet out regarding what butter prices will do between now and the end of the year. Look for more volatility.

Cheese prices were mixed this week. Prices for 40-pound blocks at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange fell from $1.1150 per pound on Monday to $1.09 by Thursday, but rose to $1.10 on Friday. Barrel cheese remained steady at $1.09 per pound all week, but rose to $1.0950 on Friday.

Both nonfat dry milk and cheese moved into the Commodity Credit Corporation this week under the dairy price support program. CCC net purchases totaled 9,109,810 pounds of nonfortified and 1,791,719 pounds of fortified nonfat dry milk from the West, 1,032,173 pounds of block cheese from the West and Midwest, and 887,988 pounds of barrel cheese from the West.

land, Adams, and York counties. Smith is housed in Adams County and provides dairy management expertise for these counties. Vinton's experience in Cornell Cooperative Extension and his strong interest in dairy farm business planning and analysis will enhance the team's efforts in this important management area.

Dr. Arlen Mills, DVM, works out of the Lebanon Office and provides expertise for herd health educational programs for area producers. Arlen's experience in private practice and at Purdue University provide excellent support to our efforts in dairy herd health education. University Dairy Alliance partners include Brad Hilty, working in information management, and Rich Stup, working in human resource management. Both bring a wealth of dairy industry knowledge and experience and provide needed resources to deliver high quality programming to our clientele.

We now have coverage for our dairy program for every county in our region. Glenn Shirk continues to serve Lancaster County, Galen Kopp serves Lebanon and portions of Dauphin County, Duane Duncan provides service for Cumberland County, and Phil Wagner continues to lead dairy programs for Franklin County. Our farm management agents Roland Freund (Franklin, York, Adams, and Cumberland counties) and Tim Fritz (Chester and Lancaster counties) provide expertise in farm business planning, transitions, and business analysis.

Tim Beck serves the region as dairy program coordinator and works in the areas of feeding management and business planning. Addressing the needs of large herds is also a part of Tim's assignment. Dan McFarland provides agricultural engineering expertise to regional producers planning farm renovations or expansions.

We will continue to adjust our events and activities in response to client needs and interests, so please share your thoughts with any team member when you have an idea you'd like to see addressed.

Thanks for the support of our programming efforts in the year 2000. Please join us for any of the following events that will help enhance your dairy management and profitability.

Meet The Challenges Head-On!

Managing daily activities, overseeing farm chores, and keeping track of finances are vital activities of a successful business.

Dairy farms are just like other businesses, operating in a competitive environment. They require the latest computer technology, sound management, and trained workers to remain efficient and profitable.

Penn State Cooperative Extension makes dairy industry education and training available, affordable, and convenient. Our educational programs are intended to help owners and managers adopt the latest technology and to improve their management, supervisory, and business skills.

We also offer specialized training for employees in charge of milking and feeding. Specifically, our programs offer Penn State quality education and training, knowledgeable and experienced instructors, demonstrations, and hands-on learning opportunities.

All workshops are conducted from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Computer Training

• Farm Financial Management Using Computers (2 Sessions). Fee: $40 (lunch on your own) For farm managers and record keepers, this hands-on workshop includes the basics of financial management and demonstrates how easy record keeping, income statements, balance sheets, and cash flow budgets can be with the power of the computer. Basic financial analysis is covered. Limited to the first 11 participants per session. Suggested prerequisite: Those who need to improve basic computer skills are encouraged to attend Introduction to Computers and Windows 98 prior to this course. Jan. 3 and 4 (Cumberland County Extension Office).

• Dairy Farm Accounting Using Computers (for farmers, spouses, and employees). Accounting concepts demonstrated using QuickBooks Pro for Windows Software 4 Sessions. Fee: $75 (lunch on your own). Basic computerized farm accounting concepts are demonstrated using QuickBooks Pro for Windows. Instruction includes basic operation of the accounting system, special farm accounting issues, entering feed costs, and enterprise accounting. Report demonstrations include cash and accrual profit-and-loss statements, budget reports, payroll and employment tax reports, and determining cost of production per unit. Participants receive a sample file with a chart of accounts setup and ready to use for their farm. Jan. 15, 19, 23, and 26 (Lancaster County Extension Office); Jan. 22, 25, 29, Feb. 2 (York County Extension Office); Feb. 5, 7, 9, and 12 (Adams County Extension Office); and Feb. 19, 21, 23, and 26 (Franklin County Extension Office).

• Introduction to Spreadsheets, 2 Sessions. Fee: $40 (lunch on your own) A spreadsheet is a powerful number cruncher. This course is a guide to its parts and terminology. Topics include entering data and formatting the spreadsheet, using arithmetic and comparison operators, and using basic formulas. Sample files available to participants include Dairy Farm Feed Cost Control, Using a TMR Mixing Sheet to Control Rations and Determine Whole Herd Costs, and Monitoring Dry-Matter Intake, Milk Production, and Milk Margin. Hands-on activities include opportunities to use ready-made worksheets such as amortization, checkbook balancing, and others, depending on class interest. Limited to the first 11 participants per session. Suggested prerequisite: Those who need to improve basic computer skills are encouraged to attend Introduction to Computers and Windows 98 prior to this course. Jan.

dairy ration programs. Feeding practices such as dry matter and pH measurement, visual appraisal of forages, TMR mixing strategies, and the ensiling process are covered. Limited to the first 25 participants. Jan. 4. (Mason Dixon Farm, Adams County).

• Milker Training. 1 Day. Fee: $35 (lunch included) This workshop provides training for dairy milking employees on proper milking procedures, mastitis detection, producing high-quality milk, and sampling cows for milk culturing. Milking employees can improve their ability to milk cows with a consistent routine using recommended milking practices. Mastitis detection and prevention will be highlighted. Limited to the first twenty-five participants. March 13. (Hershey Brothers, Manheim, Lancaster County).

Managing A Hispanic Workforce

• Managing the Hispanic Workforce. Dairy producers currently employing a Hispanic workforce, those considering workers from another culture, and industry professionals should plan to attend this conference. Knowledgeable speakers and workshop leaders will present reliable information, free of the myths and misunderstandings some producers have about this issue. Conference participants will gain a greater understanding and appreciation for the Hispanic culture. They will learn methods of organization and communication to help workers and producers succeed. In addition, participants will learn about regulations governing alien workers and ways to avoid legal problems. To register, contact conference coordinator Dee Brothers at (607) 255-4478, dab2@cornell.edu. Jan. 16 (Harrisburg).

• Employee Management, Dairy Feeding Systems Management. 3 Sessions. Fee: $500 (includes a feeder's kit valued at $500). As managers seek to improve the efficiency of the dairy feeding system, they need tools to train employees to effectively prepare, deliver, and record appropriate dairy rations to the herd. This three-day workshop provides the resources that managers need to train dairy feeding employees and to set up systems for monitoring and controlling dairy rations. March 14 (Lebanon Extension Office); March 21 (Lebanon Extension Office); March 28 (Bomberger Dairy Farm).

Penn State Begins Capitol Region Dairy Program

• DairyWorks Workshop, 2 Sessions. Intended for farmers who are either expanding their herds and have personnel management issues or large-herd dairy managers who recognize personnel management as a bottleneck in their operations. Content focuses on the steps the dairy manager can take to manage employees and to develop systems for every part of the dairy. With expansion, more and more dairy industry professionals are managing people, not cows. They need systems in place to teach their workers how to make the right cow-side decisions. March 27-28. Fee and Location to be announced. Presented by Dr. Tom Fuhrmann, international large herd dairy consultant.

• Milking Systems and Parlors, Planning and Managing for Quality Milk and Profitability. An NRAES Event, A Conference for Producers and Their Advisors. Camp Hill, Jan. 30-Feb. 1. Quality milk, milk production per man-hour, and profitability can be optimized on dairy farms through careful management and capital investments. New developments and research have occurred concerning milking parlors, milking systems, data collection and use, cow comfort, and cow handling to improve milk production. Producers considering expansion seek guidance on purchasing new milking systems and parlors as well as on effectively managing these systems.

On Jan. 30-Feb. 1 in Camp Hill, more than 30 experts on milking systems and parlors will share their knowledge and answer your questions at a conference entitled "Milking Systems and Parlors: Planning and Managing for Quality Milk and Profitability." The conference is being coordinated by NRAES, the Natural Resource, Agriculture, and Engineering Service.

The conference will provide guidance on planning milking parlors, parlor efficiency, testing and troubleshooting milking systems, system cleaning, data collection and management, workforce management, cow behavior, ventilation, and milk cooling. The target audience includes producers, their advisers, milking managers, extension educators, service and supply industry representatives, milk plant field staff, veterinarians, sanitarians, engineers, and dairy scientists.

Producers with 200 or more milking cows and those considering expansion will find this program of interest. The conference will begin at 12:30 p.m. on Jan. 30 and end at 12:30 p.m. Feb. 1. For the evening of Jan. 30, a tabletop exhibit session/reception is planned, with hors d'oeuvres provided by industry sponsors. For the evening of Jan. 31, four concurrent discussion sessions are planned on the topics of robotics, data collection and management, workforce management, and remodeling parlors for 50-200-cow dairies. The conference is designed to allow plenty of time for audience questions and informal discussion. A postconference workshop for milking system technicians with intermediate to advanced skills is also being planned.

Conference speakers will include Don Rogers, First Pioneer Farm Credit; David Reid, Rocky Ridge Veterinary Service; Steve Spencer, Penn State University; Steve Eicker, Valley Ag Software; G. M. (Jerry) Jones, Virginia Tech; Doug Reinemann, University of Wisconsin; Jack Rodenburg, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food, and Rural Affairs; Andy Johnson, Total Herd Management Services; Steve Stewart and Paul Rapnicki, University of Minnesota; Curt Gooch, Cornell's PRO-DAIRY program; Richard Stup, Penn State's Dairy Alliance Program; Edmond Pajor, Purdue University; speakers from leading manufacturers of milking equipment and parlors; and more.

If your company is interested in sponsoring, contact NRAES for information on the benefits of sponsoring. The following professional organizations have cooperated in making this conference possible: American Association of Bovine Practitioners (AABP); American Dairy Science Association (ADSA), American Registry of Professional Animal Scientists (ARPAS), National Mastitis Council (NMC), and Northeast Dairy Producers Association (NEDPA), Inc. Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders Note that ARPAS has approved 12 continuing education credits for this conference.

The registration fee is $250 if postmarked by Jan. 8 and $295 after Jan. 8 or at the door. The fee includes one conference admission, the tabletop exhibit session/reception on Jan. 30, one lunch, break refreshments, evening discussions, and a copy of the conference proceedings.

Farm Bureau Publishes Guide To Conservation Easements

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — The American Farm Bureau Federation has teamed up with two respected land management specialists to produce an authoritative guide for landowners considering the sale of conservation easements on their land.

"The Landowner's Guide To Conservation Easements," authored by Dr. Steven Bick and Dr. Harry L. Haney, covers all the issues related to the sale of conservation easements so landowners can be fully informed before making a final decision.

According to AFBF President Bob Stallman, a Texas cattle and rice producer, the book is "a must read" for landowners considering conservation easements as part of their land management plan.

"This book is unique from all other material published on the topic of conservation easements because it takes an objective look at this complicated issue from the perspective of a landowner," Stallman said. "Other material about conservation easements usually contains a bias — either espousing or deriding the virtues of this relatively new land management tool. This guide draws on research conducted with landowners regarding their actual experiences in granting conservation easements."

An easement is a less-than-full ownership interest in a parcel of land. It is generally a voluntary but binding legal contract that directs land management.

Landowners who grant easements give up some of their ownership rights, according to Don Parrish, senior environmental policy specialist for AFBF.

"Many landowners are considering or have willingly sold or donated conservation easements for a wide range of benefits and incentives," Parrish explained. "The agreements behind conservation easements are formally recorded in a deed, which can prohibit some activities entirely, modify existing uses, and/or introduce new ones. Understanding that easements divide ownership interest in property is the first step in determining if a conservation easement is right for you and your land."

According to Parrish, the use of conservation easements is becoming more common across the nation, as landowners "discover their land holds intrinsic values that American society has only lately grown to treasure." Whether landowners accept payment for the preservation of open space, or a number of other conservation functions, there are a number of points that must be considered before any agreement is signed.

One of the authors, Bick, is the principal consultant with Northeast Forests, LLC, of Thendara, N.Y. He serves as adjunct assistant professor of forestry at the State University of New York's College of Environmental Science and Forestry, Syracuse, N.Y. The other author, Haney, serves as a professor of forestry and is an extension specialist in forest management-economics at Virginia Tech University.

Topics covered in the book include:

- An in-depth explanation of conservation easements and whether they are appropriate for an owner's land
- Income, estate, and property tax aspects
- Designing easement deeds and reserving rights
- Results of easement arrangements

- A process for informed decision-making.

For more information about the topic of conservation easements, contact AFBF's Parrish at (847) 685-8742. Credit card orders for the book ($24.95) may be placed by calling Kendall/Hunt Publishing Company at (800) 228-0810.

MMB Announces November Class I Price

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Milk Marketing Board (MMB) announced the prices to be paid to Pennsylvania dairy farmers for November Class I milk (beverage) as an average of $15.67 in the western areas of the Commonwealth, and an average of $16.16 in the central and eastern areas of the Commonwealth.

However, the price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks of 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids.

These prices do include the current over-order premium of $1.20 per one hundred pounds of milk, and the fuel adjustment premium of $.25 per one hundred pounds of milk.

Since 1988, the MMB has mandated over-order premiums on Class I milk due to adverse conditions affecting the Pennsylvania dairy farmer.

Chairwoman Beverly R. Minor announced that since the inception of the MMB's over-order premium in 1988, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received an additional $217,792,000 in income.

Warren County Dairy Herds Honored

LANDER (Warren Co.) — The Warren County Dairy Herd Improvement Association and Holstein Club recently held their joint annual meeting dinner at the Lander Fire Hall. Several outstanding herds were recognized for their production the past year.

The best dairy herd in Warren County this year was the herd of Rolling Acres in Sugar Grove. The herd, owned and managed by Tim Ludwick, consists of 45 registered Holstein cows. It was the high herd in milk production with 26,670 average pounds of milk, high herd in protein production with 844-pounds of protein average, and high herd in butterfat production with an average of 914-pounds of butterfat. The Rolling Acres herd was also the most improved herd in milk production with a 3001-pound average increase in milk. Ludwick earned the Herd Management Award with a total of 114 points.

Also during the award presentations, Rolling Acres also was honored for having the top producing cow in Warren County and in Pennsylvania this year. A 5-year-old Holstein cow named "Dazzle Girl" produced 51,512-pounds of milk, 1,485-lbs. of protein, and 1,908-pounds of butterfat. The pounds of milk produced earned her top honors in the state, as Dazzle Girl produced nearly 6,000 gallons of milk. This amount is enough to supply over 50 households with milk for an entire year.

The most improved dairy herd in protein production and butterfat production was owned by Elzie and Margaret Lindell of Lander. The Lindell herd had a 71-pound increase in protein and a 146-pound increase in butterfat.

Donald Ekey's herd in Akeley earned top honors for having the lowest somatic cell count (a total average of 157,000 somatic cells), in Warren County.

High herds for protein and butterfat were also recognized at the meeting. Those herds producing over 800-pounds of protein were Rolling Acres (844) and Ronald Hunter (817). Herds producing between 700-799-pounds of protein included Jared Lindell (721), Richard Harrington (715), and Martha Beardsley (714).

Those producing between 600-699-pounds of protein were: Hem View Holsteins (689), Foggy Meadows Farm (682), Chris Lindell (676), Elzie and Margaret Lindell (673), Mark Lawson (672), Jack and Gale Lindell (658), Pine Ton Farms (658), Kevin Long (644), Gla Don Farms (624), and Ran-Dell Farm (615).

High butterfat herds included Rolling Acres (914), Martha Beardsley (878), Richard Harrington (840), Ronald Hunter (818), Jared Lindell (795), Pine Ton Farms (779), Jack and Gale Lindell (771), Elzie and Margaret Lindell (762), Chris Lindell (759), Sunset Dairy (744), Ran-Dell Farm (741), Gla Don Farms (733), Kevin Long (721), Hem View Holsteins (716), Foggy Meadows Farm (715), and Mark Lawson (710).

Warren County Holstein Club and State Holstein President, Dean Johnson, presided over the meetings. The Holstein Club of Warren County reviewed their activities throughout the year. The 2000 consignment sale averaged $1,501 for 78 head of cattle test winner was Kelsi Wilcox of Russell. She also delivered her speech to the group.

Other youth were recognized for their participation at the Junior Holstein Convention. Junior dairy bowl team members were Kelsi Wilcox, Meggi Wilcox, Toni Gilkinson, and Marshall Johnson. Senior dairy bowl team consisted of Chris Vanco, Peter Vanco, and Sarah Lindell.

Tiffany Gilkinson, Warren County Dairy Princess and Sarah Lindell, Alternate Warren County Dairy Princess were present to promote the dairy industry.

The annual meeting program, as well as a special recognition during the invocation, was dedicated to the memory of three active dairymen who passed away this year. Dennis Lindell, Ransom "Buzz" Riedel, and Leslie Curtis will all be sadly missed by the dairy farmers in Warren County.

Pork Board Adopts 2001 Industry Budget

DES MOINES, Iowa — The National Pork Board has approved a spending budget of $51.4 million for checkoff-funded programs in fiscal year 2001. The action came here during the board's fall meeting.

Pork checkoff funds research, promotion, and education programs that are designed to build a future and create opportunities for pork producers.

"As we await the announcement of the referendum vote, both the National Pork Board and National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) continue to plan and work on the programs that benefit all producers," said National Pork Board President John Kellogg, a pork producer from Yorkville, Ill. "The programs that will be funded with checkoff dollars in 2001 reflect the needs and priorities of U.S. pork producers."

The board is allocating $39.4 million in contracts to its general contractor the NPPC. A total of $10.4 million will be returned to the state pork producer association level for promotion, consumer information, and research programs complementary to the national checkoff programs. Administrative costs of the National Pork Board will remain relatively low for 2001, representing about three percent of the total checkoff collections.

Promotional programming of the total 2001 national and state checkoff funding will account for 61 percent of the budget. Twenty-five percent of the budget will be directed into research and education. Consumer information programs will account for 14 percent of the budget.

"We are also focusing on areas of emerging importance to pork producers. Four cross-departmental strategic work areas are high on the priority list for 2001," said Kellogg. He explained the areas include food safety, value-added and niche marketing, nutrition and diet health, and certification programs. "Through producer input, it has been determined that addressing these program areas will help provide producers access to the tools they need to remain profitable in the future."

The following checkoff-funded grants were awarded to NPPC: consumer communications, $12.9 million; retail/food service marketing, $10.4 million; foreign market development, 6.1 million; production technology and information, $5.9 million; and swine health/pork safety/pork quality, $4 million.

Of the overall checkoff funds allocated to programs, approximately 20 percent, or $10.4 million, is returned to state pork associations for work in the state and local level. "The state and national programs complement each other and provide for the most efficient use of checkoff funds," according to Kellogg. "As an example, the states have a more even distribution of funds between consumer information, research and promotion. They rely on national dollars to carry the majority of promotion so they can focus on other more locally effective activities."

Producers Approve Research Projects Addressing Pork Priorities

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — More than 90 pork producers, industry scientists and other specialists gathered in Kansas City, Mo., to discuss progress and innovation in the pork industry.

Members of five producer committees reviewed more than 150 research proposals during the checkoff sponsored 2000 Unified Research Review Meeting, which was organized by the National Pork Producers Council in conjunction with the National Pork Board.

The committees selected 47 projects to recommend the National Pork Board fund with checkoff dollars. James Ledger, a pork producer from Washington, Iowa, said all the funded research addresses issues producers face on a daily basis.

"Producers are interested in what checkoff dollars do to help us be as efficient as we can be," said Ledger, a member of the Swine Health Committee. "For example, diseases in swine are a top priority for our committee, which affects the bottom line that producers deal with on a day-to-day basis."

Committees participating in the meeting represented the industry areas of swine health, pork safety, pork quality, human nutrition, and environmental issues.

Mark Reding, member of the Diet/Health and Food Policy Committee and a pork producer from Howardstown, Ky., welcomed the chance to learn about research advances in all aspects of the industry.

"It's good for producers, industry and scientists to meet each other, and the meeting brought us all together. We couldn't have all this expertise brought to each committee individually," said Reding, who also serves on the National Pork Board.

"It's important for all of us to have an idea of what the other committees are working on. This way we're not operating in a vacuum."

Dr. Chris Calkins, member of the Pork Quality Solutions Team and a meat scientist from the University of Nebraska, also appreciated the opportunity to meet with others involved in the pork industry.

"One of the strengths of this meeting is that it gets producers, packers and scientists together. The interaction is good, and it allows us to hear from all perspectives," Calkins said.

Other topics discussed during the meeting included updates on antimicrobial resistance, a pork quality research initiative, the Pseudorabies eradication program, and food labeling issues. Researchers will be notified of their proposals' approval and will work with the National Pork Board and National Pork Producers Council to relay the information on to producers.

Jersey judge. He has been president of the Mercer County Farmers Association, the 4-H Development Committee, and vice president of Mercer County Cooperative Extension Board.

He has also served as president of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club and the Pennsylvania Purebred Dairy Cattle Association, besides serving on the national board of directors of the American Jersey Cattle Club and director of Ag Choice. Careful management has developed high-producing and progressive genetics in his Vantage Jersey herd that has repeatedly won awards.

Koontz also had the top selling consignment in the Top of the World Jersey Sale in 1998.

He is active in his church and supports missionaries and World Vision, an international Christian relief organization.

Elsie Wolff, Quarryville, was awarded the Distinguished Dairy Women's Award. Wolff grew up on a dairy farm in Connecticut and helped husband J. Scott Wolff operate Hollow View farm.

The farm's herd of purebred Guernsey cows was considered one of Pennsylvania's finest until 1987, when the milking animals were sold. Some of the younger animals have been retained, which Elsie raises and places in herds of younger dairymen. She has also devoted time as a 4-H leader.

Wolff has cared for and shown 40 Hollow View animals that earned All-American nominations. Additionally she has exhibited at the All-American Dairy Show for 33 of the show's 35 years. She has also served on the board of directors for the show and on the show improvement committee since 1988.

Wolff has exhibited animals at the Pennsylvania Farm Show from 1953 through 1997. She has also served as secretary of the Pennsylvania Guernsey Breeder's Association for the past 20 years, besides serving as treasurer of the National American Guernsey Association Convention.

Philip E. Wagner, Chambersburg, an extension agent in Franklin County, received the 2001 extension award.

Wagner graduated from Penn State with a degree in animal industry and received a masters degree in dairy science from Virginia Tech.

As an extension agent in Franklin county, he manages the adult and youth dairy programs and conducts workshops and training sessions on dairy management.

Wagner was instrumental in organizing the Franklin County Nutrition Service and the Franklin County Graziers discussion group. He has led in the effort to educate producers on the benefits of using total mixed rations and helped to solve problems with early freestall housing facilities in Franklin County.

Wagner has also worked to promote 4-H dairy judging and dairy bowl programs, leading to teams from the county winning state contests. Seven 4-H'ers have participated in dairy judging contests at the national level. He has chaired the South Central District 4-H Dairy Show planning committee for 10 years. In addition he is a regular member of the Farm Show and All-American Dairy Show committees.

Rick Smith, Dairylea Cooperative Inc. delivered a speech entitled "Looking Into Our Future." Smith focused on his hopes for the dairy industry in the Northeast as Pennsylvania develops infrastructure for supply, distribution, and marketing that will be capable of meeting demands in the future.

"When we talk about a vibrant, vital outlook on the dairy industry, the most important part is attitude," said Smith. He said that optimism is key as producers focus on improvement and moving forward. "When we do that, we will succeed."

He also pointed out the strengths of the dairy industry in the Northeast. Production, easily-accessible processing plants, a strong transportation system, and a large consumer base aid the area's business.

The Northeast dairy industry also boasts diversity, a great strength, according to Smith. Small and large cow herds, organic and future robotic milkers, small and major trucking companies, and single-facility and international buyers are all important, said Smith.

"We're going to have a great diversity of producers well into the future. I think this diversity is an asset," said Smith.

He also addressed challenges to the industry and urged producers to focus on the future and less on the past, have a positive attitude, and refrain from looking at other components in the industry as competitors.

Said Smith, "Trying to drag

Philip Wagner, Chambersburg, an extension agent in Franklin County, received the 2001 Extension Award from Frank Orner, president of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association.

someone else down in the chain is absolutely wrong. All components are needed for success."

Smith also asked producers to have fun and take satisfaction from their jobs. "We need to be an attractive industry," he said.

Veal Products 'Harvest' Rave Reviews

WESTMORELAND, N.Y. — The kitchen staff at The Desmond worked overtime to satisfy the demands of the participants of the Albany Times-Union "Pride of New York Harvest Fest" Nov. 18 and 19. Veal meatballs and veal bacon were the highlight of the event, complementing the hundred of wines available as part of the "Uncork New York" wine tasting.

New York Beef Industry Council, NYBIC, along with N.Y. Veal Growers, and Tom

Bayly of Catelli Brothers, served 3,000 meatballs and 1,500 samples of veal bacon at the event. Many of the tasters remembered the meatballs from the year before and are anticipating their retail debut in January. The meatballs were served with a cranberry peach dipping sauce.

Veal bacon, also a success, is an exciting item on the new-product list of the National Cattlemen's Beef Association. With 25 percent less fat than ordinary bacon, in addition to a delicious flavor and unique appeal, it has created much excitement on both the retail and food service fronts. Both products were purchased from Catelli Brothers in Collingswood, N.J. by the New York Veal Growers' Association.

According to Hank Ferris, President of the New York Veal Grower's Association, "The Harvest Fest was particularly exciting this year. Often times we find that consumers are intimidated by veal and aren't willing to risk preparing it at home. Fully-cooked meatballs allow them to serve veal with ease."

Coopers, Rutters Share York DHIA Honors

York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) — Young dairy couple Scott and April Cooper and longtime family operation Rutter Brothers shared some of the top honors awarded recently at the York DHIA annual meeting conducted Dec. 1 at the 4-H Center.

The Coopers, Delta, were named high herd in the country for both milk and protein, finishing the 2000 test year with an average of 28,412-pounds of milk and 887-pounds of protein.

Rutter's Dairy's Holstein herd zoomed to the top of the herd management list with 114 points on the evaluation, which weighs a variety of factors in tallying the total score. The York dairy tied for third place as well in the management category with its well-known Guernsey herd, racking up 97 points in the tally, the same score achieved by the Cooper's Holsteins.

Leonard Greek, Delta, finished second in the overall herd management scoring, with 102 points. In fifth spot with 96 points, were Glenn and Dawn Anderson, East Prospect.

Most of the top five awards in several categories alternated among a half-dozen of the county's highest-producing herds.

Taking several honors for the first time this year was the My-T herd, Delta, owned by Myron and Teresa Pomraning, and their daughters Stephanie, Suzann and Jessica. The Pomranings, whose daughters are instrumental in helping to care for the family herd, placed first in the quality-related low somatic cell category.

Recognized for their high herd in milk and protein, 305-day records, were also Rutters' Holsteins, second with 26,775-pounds and 820-pounds protein, Smyser's Richlawn Farms, operated by the families of Rodney and Robert Smyser, third with 26,369-pounds milk and 796 of protein, Leonard Greek, fourth at 25,419-pounds milk and 789-pounds protein, and Walk-Le-Holsteins, the Leroy Walker family, fifth at 25,152-pounds milk and 785-pounds protein.

High 305-day individual records were awarded to nine breed winners. Fawn, owned by Triple J Ayrshires, topped the Ayrshire category with a milk record of 25,404. Rutters claimed two breed titles, taking the Guernsey honor with their cow Cindy, and her 27,202 milk lactation, and the Mixed Breed award with Dixie, at 26,815 milk.

Holstein titlist was Scott and April Cooper's Whoopie, with a whopping 42,241-pound, 305-day milk record. Topping the Jersey honors was #15, owned by John Dietz, and completing a record of 17,931 milk pounds. Perrydell Farms' #107 wrapped up a 26,383-pound record to top the Red and White category.

Glenn and Dawn Anderson

also earned two category honors, with Brown Swiss winner #306 completing a 29,618 record and Lineback winner #1104 with a 25,926-pound lactation. Milking Shorthorn award winner was #09 with 17,213-pounds, owned by Glenn and Gary Crowl.

Four of the five highest individual 305-day protein records were from the Cooper herd, with Whoopie at 1,249-pounds protein on her 42,241 milk pounds lactation, Marissa with 1,166-pounds protein and a 37,055-pound milk record, Mist, 1,163-pounds protein and 35,587 milk, and Danni, 1,125 protein and 37,125 milk. Rutters' Holsteins were fourth with Neon, 1,131-pounds protein and 37,030 milk.

High individual 2-year-old was Glenn and Dawn Anderson's Pat, with a first lactation of 31,747-pounds of milk. The Anderson's also earned recognition for high lifetime cow, Rosa, producing 254,033-pounds of milk in eight lactations. Second high lifetime production for the year among the county's test herds was Ada, owned by Elvin L. Deter, completing 10 lactations with a total of 253,280-pounds milk.

Pomraning's My-T Farms winning quality award came on a Somatic Cell Count year average of 125,000. Second was Kate-Ann Farm, with 141,000, Larry Robinson, third, with 174,000, Leaspring Farm, fourth, at 187,000, and Glenn and Dawn Anderson, 209,000.

Most improved herd in protein was John Krone, Glen Rock, with a plus protein pounds of 69 and a herd protein average of 645. My-T Farm was second, with a 68-pound increase and a 523 average. Third was Cool Branch Farm, 55-pound increase, fourth was Bradley Herr, 48-pound increase and Willow Grove Farm was fifth with a 39-pound increase.

Most improved herd in milk was My-T Farm at 3,134-pounds. John Krone was second with 2,162-pounds milk. Bradley Herr was third with a 1,962-pounds increase, Cool Branch Farm with 1,866-pounds milk and Elvin Deter at 1,827-pounds milk increase.

High protein in herds averaging over 850-pounds was Scott and April Cooper at 887. In the 750-849-pounds measurement category Rutters' Holsteins were first at 820-pounds, Smyser's Richlawn at 796, Leonard Greek, third, 789, Walk-Le Holsteins, fourth, 785, Lynn Wolf, fifth, 762, and Glenn and Dawn Anderson, sixth, 756-pounds of protein.

In the business meeting portion of the annual DHIA gathering, Ed Cottrell, Seven Valleys, was elected for a three-year term on the test cooperative's county board. Entertainment was provided by Peggy Dawson, who kept her dairy audience laughing with her "down home" country humor and tapping select members of the group to play in her improvisational kitchen band.

Encouraging musical talent that they didn't even know they had, York DHIA meeting entertainer Peggy Dawson tapped audience members for her kitchen band.

Pa. Breeders Registering Most Angus In Fiscal Year

The 10 producers who registered the most Angus beef cattle in the state of Pennsylvania recorded a total of 779 Angus with the American Angus Association.

1. Sidney Riggs, Friedens, 118
2. McKean Bros., Mercer, 116
3. McCullough Angus, Mercer, 93

4. Sinclair Cattle Co., Wafordsburg, 89

5. South Branch Farms, Seven Valleys, 85

6. Circle Oak Farm, Gettysburg, 61

7. Frey Family Angus, Quarryville, 52

8. Pennsylvania State University, UP, 44

9. Samuel Wylie III, Breezewood, 41

10. Oak Hill Angus Farm, Avella, 40

11. Erdenheim Farm, Lafayette Hill, 40

Angus breeders across the nation in 2000 registered 271,222 head of Angus cattle, an increase of nearly four percent from a year ago.

"This increase reinforces the demand for Angus genetics in commercial herds as producers are more aware of end product quality and its effect on their bottom line," says Spader, Executive vice president, American Angus Association.

Bay Program Partners Commit To Toxic Reductions

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — A new action plan that sets far-reaching goals for preventing the release of chemical contaminants into the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries was unveiled recently by the Chesapeake Bay Program. The Toxics 2000 Strategy fulfills the first major commitment of Chesapeake 2000, the watershed-wide restoration plan signed by Bay Program partners in June.

The strategy commits to voluntary goals that surpass current regulatory requirements and strives to achieve "zero release" of chemical contaminants into the Bay by phasing out chemical mixing zones, reducing point source loads, and adopting new measures to ensure that finfish and shellfish are safe to eat. And, for the first time, the Bay Program is setting specific numerical goals to reduce toxics from non-point sources such as stormwater and agricultural runoff.

By focusing on areas most impacted by chemical contaminants, including three major Regions of Concern the Anacostia River, the Elizabeth River and Baltimore Harbor the strategy calls for implementing plans to cleanup existing contaminated sediments and the acceleration of voluntary efforts to prevent future contamination.

"As one of the key commitments of Chesapeake 2000, the Toxics 2000 Strategy is designed to eliminate toxic impacts and public health concerns in the Anacostia," said Chesapeake Executive Council Chairman and District of Columbia Mayor Anthony A. Williams. "This strategy is one of the first steps toward meeting the ambitious goals of that plan."

"By agreeing to no net increase of chemical contaminants from developing lands and the phasing out of chemical mixing zones, Bay partners have committed to achieving a "zero release" goal that will ultimately reduce toxic impacts on the Bay," said Chesapeake Bay Program Director Bill Matuszeski.

The Toxics 2000 Strategy is the result a lengthy open public process involving over 300 government, citizen, industry, environmental and scientific leaders from across the Chesapeake Bay watershed.

"The extensive public involvement and support over the past year and a half is the key to meeting the goals set forth in this strategy," said Chesapeake Bay Program Toxics Subcommittee Chair Bob Summers. "The result of this unique stakeholder-driven process is a clear strategy calling for more extensive Bay preservation and restoration efforts."

For more information about the Toxics 2000 Strategy, including an executive summary, list of participating stakeholders and links to Bay Program partners, visit the Chesapeake Bay Program website at <http://www.chesapeakebay.net/press.htm>.

Question: Reproductive performance over the past several years has gotten worse. We have tried all the normal things that most dairymen do, with the help of our veterinarian. Is there some influence that we may have overlooked?

Reproductive performance is a subject that I leave solely in hands of people more skilled than myself. I would like to report on some research that I read about lately and how it might apply to this situation.

At the 2000 Regional Meeting of the National Mastitis Council, personnel at the University of Tennessee presented a paper entitled "Clinical and Subclinical Mastitis During Early Lactation Impairs Reproductive Performance of Dairy Cows". These were the conclusions at the end of that presentation: (1) occurrence of mastitis before first service delayed days to first service, (2) occurrence of mastitis during the breeding period increased days open and doubled the number of services per conception compared to uninfected cows, (3) reproductive performance was not affected if mastitis occurred after establishment of pregnancy, (4) both Gram-negative and Gram-positive mastitis pathogens decreased reproductive performance similarly, (5) sub clinical and clinical mastitis equally reduced reproductive performance, and (6) experimentally-induced mastitis increased concentrations of cortisol, increased serum PFG-2alpha, and elevated body temperature.

As this applies to this farm we should first look at the mastitis trends of this herd measured by somatic cell count.

We can easily see the increased trend in Somatic Cell Count over the past three years. I further dug into the information and turned up the following.

We see that the big influence on the cell count is on the cows that we are breeding or getting ready to breed. In the first 60 days in milk (the voluntary waiting period) we see by far the highest infection rate this year. We see the same thing in cows during the breeding period as indicated by the list for cows up till 130 days in milk.

I then looked at all the current pregnant cows. 23 cows became pregnant less than 130 DIM and 75% did not have a LSCC exceeding 3 for the first three test periods. 16 cows became pregnant past 130 DIM with 63%

Is this significant? I can't be sure but there is much at stake when we fail to keep somatic cell counts in check. We have to ask ourselves; could reproductive performance be one of them?

Lunch will be provided at a nominal fee of $3 per person. Payment will be collected at the door.

Reservations should be made by Wednesday, Jan. 3 at the Snyder County Conservation District Office by calling (570) 837-0007, ext. 5.

Speakers will include representatives of the Snyder County Conservation District, USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service and Farm Service Agency, Penn State Cooperative Extension, and Wenger's Feeds.

EAST LANSING, Mich. — "Ring Of Cross" was judged grand champion of the International Championship Show at the Michigan State University Livestock Pavilion, East Lansing, Michigan. "Ring Of Cross" was exhibited by Michelle Shipe of Freeport, Ohio and owned by Dickinson Cattle Co., Inc. of Barnesville, Ohio.

"Ring Of Cross" is a registered BueLingo, a beef breed developed from genetics which originated in Holland. BueLingo are a composite of Dutch Belted, Angus and Limousin blended to be a superior performing beef breed.

In the early days of breed development Dr. Russell Danielson of North Dakota State University did all the performance testing. One appreciated quality of BueLingo is the ability of adult cows to wean calves above 50 percent of their own weight. This virtue has a two part origin due to the extra milk from Dutch Belt genetics and the medium size cow's efficiency.

BueLingo are not Belted Galloway. Both breeds have a partial origin in Dutch Belt genetics but they are quite different. BueLingo are normal size beef cattle with short slick hair and Belted Galloway are small

The BueLingo Cattle Society is a young breed with over 100 members and just under 5,000 recorded cattle. A BueLingo is normally black with a full circle white belt, but some are red, gray or gold colors.

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Mason Dixon Farms will host a session on training dairy feeding employees Thursday, Jan. 4.

Area dairy managers are encouraged to enroll their employees responsible for feeding management. The session is coordinated by the Capitol Region Dairy Extension Team.

The morning session begins with registration at 9:30 a.m. The program will begin at 10 a.m.

During the morning session, Dr. Jud Heinrichs, Penn State Dairy and Animal Science; Virginia Ishler, Penn State program assistant, and Tim Beck, Capitol Region Dairy Program coordinator will discuss using dry matter, visual appraisal, and pH to evaluate silage samples.

Lab activities will include procedures to test dry matter and what to look for when visually appraising a sample. Calculations to adjust rations using these measurements will be reviewed.

The afternoon program will look at particle size and the effects of mixing time on particle size of finished TMRs. Participants will tour the bunkers and feeding system at Mason Dixon Farms. Doyle Waybright will discuss the farm's management system and answer questions about the farm operation.

The session will conclude with a demonstration of Excel spreadsheets to record dry matter history, milk production, and feed costs, and a spreadsheet to recalculate TMR mix sheets. An optional tour of Mason Dixon Farms will be conducted at the conclusion of the session.

Directions to Mason Dixon Farms: Take Rt. 15 south of Gettysburg to the last exit before the Maryland line. Exit at Steinwehr Avenue and cross the bridge heading east on Steinwehr Avenue. Take an im-

Cattle Producers Look Forward To New Administration, Congress

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Cattle producers look forward to working with a Bush Administration and the new Congress to solve issues important to the future of family farms and ranches across the country, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) said recently after presidential election results were confirmed.

"President-Elect Bush and Vice President-Elect Dick Cheney share many views with American beef producers such as elimination of the death tax, local control of environmental policies and making sure that trade laws are fair, protect U.S. producers and continue to open new overseas markets for U.S. beef," said NCBA President George Hall.

"However, the narrow majorities in the House and 50-50 split in the Senate, combined with an entirely new administration, makes it imperative that cattle producers mobilize like never before to keep our industry moving forward," Hall said. "We need every able body. We need to be united. We need to speak with one voice. We need to ensure the agenda set by lawmakers includes our priorities."

"NCBA is proud of the strong, bipartisan relationships we have developed over the years in both the House and Senate," said Hall. "We look forward to continuing those relationships in the next Congress to make gains in issues important to family farms and ranches."

Hall added that the continued power and impact of suburbia is only expected to grow, with fewer congressmen focused on rural issues. The 2000 Census will be released next spring, and there is a potential for fewer rural seats due to suburbanization.

"As agriculture numbers become smaller, so does our voice," Hall said. "But by banding together, using sound scientific reasons and educating elected leaders on the importance of our industry to this great country and around the world, we can be effective."

As the new administration works to fill its cabinet positions, NCBA will urge that consideration be given to individuals who understand the complexities of the cattle business.

NCBA is prepared to move ahead with such issues as death tax repeal and other tax relief measures, opening new overseas markets to U.S. beef producers, maintaining a free market system and a free flow of market information so that cattle producers can use their ingenuity to continue to develop beef products that meet consumer demands, continued efforts to develop innovations to solve food safety issues, and developing common sense environmental policies to maintain open spaces across the country.

"We already are working to deliver positive results for cattle producers during the next session of congress," Hall said. "But to be successful, it's critical for cattle producers to stay active and make their voices heard at the local, state and national levels."

New Members Named To USDA's Forestry Advisory Council

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman has announced the selection of four members to the USDA National Urban and Community Forestry Advisory Council. There is one new member and three are reappointed.

Their term begins Jan. 1, 2001 until Dec. 31, 2003.

The new member appointed to the 15-member council is Elizabeth Kinch, with the Derby Community Foundation, Derby, Kan.

Three members have been reappointed to serve a second term. They are: John Ball, associate professor of forestry, South Dakota State University, Brookings, S.D.; Dan DeWald, natural resources manager, City of Bellevue Parks and Community Services, Bellevue, Wash., and Deborah Gangloff, executive director, American Forests, Tracy's Landing, Md. Ms. Gangloff will continue to serve as the chairwoman of the council.

The experience these four members bring to the council will enhance USDA's efforts to protect and increase urban tree cover and heighten the importance of urban and community forestry initiatives throughout the nation," said Glickman.

The council advises the secretary concerning the care and management of trees, forests, and related natural resources in urban and community settings. The council also works with federal and state agencies and other partners to share information, technical assistance, and award competitive cost-share grants that advance the science and practice of urban forestry.

Corn Growers Denounce USDA's Inaction On Upper Mississippi River

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Recently, the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) publicly chastised USDA for its inactivity on the issue of improving the transportation infrastructure on the upper Mississippi River.

Addressing the USDA's Agricultural Transportation Summit in St. Louis, Tim Burrack, a corn grower from Arlington, Iowa, and a member of the NCGA Production and Stewardship Action Team, rebuked the USDA for its failure to fulfill commitments made two years ago.

"In 1998, USDA held a summit similar to this one to determine the transportation needs of American agriculture," noted Burrack. "One key point from that meeting was that American farmers saw the dire need for improving locks on the upper Mississippi and Illinois rivers. Two years ago it seemed the USDA got the message, touting various Memorandums of Understanding with the Department of Transportation and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. It now appears only the Corps has honored those documents."

For several years, the NCGA and other leading agricultural groups have pressed for improvements to locks and dams on the upper Mississippi and Illinois rivers in order to maintain the U.S. competitive edge in the global grain trade. Major competitors of U.S. farmers — Argentina, Brazil, and China — continue to invest hundreds of millions of dollars into their transportation systems and dramatically reduce their costs for moving grain for export.

The NCGA has actively endorsed the Corps' completion of the Upper Mississippi River Navigation Study. That study will outline the economic and environmental benefits of doubling the size of seven locks from 600 feet to 1,200 feet and lengthening guide walls on five other locks. The 15-year project would cost $1.2 billion. A lock and dam users' trust fund would pay $600 million with the U.S. Treasury paying the other half.

"NCGA is particularly interested in this study because the upper Mississippi and Illinois rivers are the primary artery for U.S. corn and bean exports," Burrack said. "Every year, more than one billion bushels of corn move toward export markets on these waterways."

Since the summit more than two years ago, Burrack said, the Corps and agricultural groups have repeatedly asked USDA to provide information and expertise to the study — requests that have fallen on deaf ears.

"Much of the current debate surrounding economics of the upper Mississippi study could be put to rest if USDA would only commit the resources necessary to find the correct answer," said Burrack. "Instead, we see a USDA that just wants to hold an occasional meeting and perpetuate the myth that it is representing American agriculture."

Burrack pointed out that since the 1998 summit, foreign markets have continued to expand while "the Corps has met the study deadline with 'delays' and USDA has continued to duck its responsibilities as the governmental representative of U.S. agricultural interests."

Maryland, Virginia Milk Cooperative Welcomes Two New Employees

RESTON, Va. — Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative recently hired two new employees to work in its quality and member services and milk accounting departments.

Lisa Perrin is the new member services and quality assurance administrator and Susan Smith has joined Maryland and Virginia as its milk accounting manager. Both bring with them excellent experience in the dairy industry.

Perrin has a bachelor's degree in animal science from Cornell University and joined Maryland and Virginia as the member services and quality assurance administrator in October. Previously she worked as the communications intern for the cooperative, assisting with all aspects of the communications department.

In her new capacity, Perrin generates and distributes milk quality and regulatory information to producers, field representatives, customers, and state agencies. In addition, she assists the member services and field programs with the overall coordination and administration of the department.

Raised on a 60-cow dairy near Buffalo, N.Y., and working as a herdsman on a 225-cow dairy after graduation, Perrin enjoys the opportunity to work directly with producers. "It's important that producers know they have someone to talk to," she said.

"I am looking forward to all the contributions Lisa will make to Maryland and Virginia. She brings with her a strong dairy background and is very knowledgeable about the dairy industry. We are very pleased to welcome her to the cooperative," said Jim Howie, manager of member services.

Susan Smith began her duties as milk accounting manager in early October. She directs and coordinates the milk accounting operation and oversees the pooling of milk in order to maximize the return to producers. Smith comes to Maryland and Virginia after an 11-year career with the Federal Order Milk Marketing system. She began her career working as an auditor and most recently was in charge of statistics and all producer information at the Market Administrator Office in Atlanta, Ga.

"I have the background and

now I will get to see the whole picture and how everything fits together. It's going to be challenging and interesting all at the same time and I'm looking forward to it," Smith said.

Mike Asbury, director of support systems and milk accounting, said, "Susan will be involved in all aspects of milk accounting for Maryland and Virginia and her knowledge of Federal Order regulations will help market Maryland and Virginia's milk in the most cost efficient manner."

Smith is a 1989 graduate of the University of Kentucky with a bachelor's degree in accounting.

Mad Cow Disease Not A Problem In The U.S.

WASHINGTON, DC — Consumers worldwide benefit from more than 10 years of aggressive, coordinated government and industry efforts that have kept the U.S. cattle herd free of bovine spongiform encephalopathy (BSE), better known as 'mad cow' disease, the National Cattlemen's Beef Association (NCBA) said recently.

"While the European Union suffers through crippling consumer concerns and behind-the-curve government efforts to deal with the current European mad cow disease scare, no cases of BSE have been found in the United States, said NCBA CEO Charles P. Schroeder. "And we believe our continued prevention efforts resulted in the October scientific report by the U.S.-based Council for Agricultural Science and Technology (CAST) that found a very low risk for U.S. occurrence of BSE."

"In today's global marketplace, producers and consumers worldwide have an interest in a safe global beef supply and confidence among world consumers," said Schroeder. "We stand willing to offer any assistance to help Europe eradicate this disease and restore consumer confidence. The United States has had great success in preventing and eradicating animal diseases and our scientific-based systems could prove useful to EU government officials and beef producers."

Schroeder explained that the U.S. began an aggressive BSE surveillance program in May 1990 to ensure timely detection and quick response in the event BSE was ever introduced into the United States. The surveillance program involves several government agencies and more than 250 federal and state regulatory veterinarians who have been trained to diagnose foreign animal diseases including BSE.

The cooperation cited in the CAST report, both within the industry and between the industry and the government, is a hallmark of the U.S. BSE program and a major reason for our success in preventing this disease, according to Schroeder.

"An example of swift response and cooperation was the U.S. industry's reaction to information that feed which included meat and bone meal might have caused the spread of BSE in England," Schroeder said. "Within a couple of weeks following the March 20, 1996, British announcement that BSE might be related to a human disease, the U.S. cattle industry implemented a voluntary ban on use of these supplements in cattle feed."

In addition, Schroeder said the NCBA also urged the Food and Drug Administration's (FDA) Center for Veterinary Medicine to review the science and develop regulations regarding use of meat and bone meal in feeds for ruminants (chewing animals such as cattle, goats, camels and deer that have a four-chambered stomach).

Even prior to instituting the surveillance program in 1990, U.S. government response to the BSE issue was decisive and aggressive. With U.S. cattle industry support, in July 1989, USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) instituted a ban prohibiting importation of ruminant animals from countries with confirmed cases of BSE. This was followed in November 1989 by an additional ban on most ruminant products from those countries.

While the EU is only now beginning to impose wide scale bans on use of animal-derived protein supplements in cattle feed, the U.S. took that step more than three years ago, Schroeder says. In June of 1997, the FDA issued a regulation banning the use of most mammalian protein in ruminant feeds.

Ridge Administration Announces About 300 Farms Preserved In 2000

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced the approval of 30 farms — totaling nearly 3,100-acres, for preservation.

The announcement brings the total number of farms preserved since January to 283 — with more than 33,000-acres — the most farms preserved during any year since Pennsylvania's farmland preservation program began in 1989.

"The Ridge Administration is proud to say that Pennsylvania's Farmland Preservation Program is preserving farmland at a pace faster than any other state in the nation," Hayes said.

"Thanks to Gov. Ridge's

'Growing Greener' program and the strides we made during the '100 Days of Growing Greener,' we are able to preserve more Pennsylvania farms than ever before."

At the December meeting, it was announced that 135 farms were preserved this fall.

Created in 1989, the Pennsylvania Agricultural Preservation Board oversees the state Farmland Preservation Program, which allows the state and counties to purchase development rights, referred to as easements, to guarantee that farms will remain as agricultural land.

At the meeting, five farms totaling 355-acres from Chester, Lehigh, and Northampton counties were preserved under county-owned easement programs.

Ridge signed the "Growing Greener" initiative into law on Dec. 15, 1999, investing nearly $650 million in Pennsylvania's environment — including $100 million for farmland preservation — over five years.

To celebrate the largest environmental investment in Pennsylvania history — and to begin to get these dollars into our communities as quickly as possible — Ridge launched the "100 Days of Growing Greener" at the Pennsylvania Farm Show in January.

In May, the General Assembly passed Gov. Ridge's 2000-2001 budget, which includes $135 million to fund the second year of the five-year "Growing Greener" initiative. The funds come from $100 million in new money from the General Fund and $35 million redirected from existing funding sources.

For more information on the Farmland Preservation Program, contact the Bureau of Farmland Preservation at (717) 783-3167.

Stakeholder Breakfast Focuses On Dairy Success Stories

The Zimmermans began farming in 1967. The stanchion pipeline installed a year later worked fine for them. "It seemed like there was nothing easier than that," said David.

A freestall barn was constructed in 1980. In the ensuing years, an inexpensive parlor was finally installed. But the cash flow wasn't there.

Zimmerman, who received about $1,500 in grant money to help expand the operation through BPAP participation, examined several options to ensure farm viability. In the end, they opted, after 250 cows allowed them to "break even," to expand the herd even further, to about 600 cows. But to have that many more cows required more modern equipment.

Now, there's enough work and the "whole family is starting to come back into" the operation, he noted. The family has special responsibilities: Dale with the "special needs" barn, Sharon with the milking parlor. Another daughter, Joann, 21, works at Paul B. Zimmerman Sons.

Another family, Kevin and Jennie Richael, Sunrise Dairy, Inc., in Stoneboro, spoke about how they have benefited from BPAP.

The $1,500 grant money "came in handy" when chores so bogged down the operation there was no time for family.

Kevin said, "It was not a real good lifestyle. (Jennie) wasn't happy and I wasn't happy." They relied on an old stanchion barn that just proved to be the "same old grind."

Five years ago, Kevin purchased cows and equipment on the dairy started by his father and uncle. Kevin and a cousin worked on the farm about five years.

Kevin saw how important it was to expand or "do something else," he said.

So they sat down with a financial consultant, Brad Hilty, and looked at options. The BPAP money was brought into the equation. A business plan was drawn up.

With 300 cows, cash flow was possible. The financial aspect of the business leaves Richael feeling "very grateful," he said.

By having a proposal written, the bank was very cooperative. "It looked better to the bank," he said, than simply saying, "here's what we got, see what you can do for us."

Richael emphasized how important it was to develop good working relationships with financial planners and look at the report "every month," he said. Taking 20 minutes a month to look at the "red flags" that sometime show up can prove very beneficial.

At the breakfast, Sam Hayes Jr., state secretary of agriculture, spoke about the milestones achieved. One of them was obtaining official TB-free status for Pennsylvania herds.

Also, the stories about Pennsylvania's involvement in obtaining cattle from Uruguay are not true. Hayes said he wouldn't allow Pennsylvania to be put at risk for potential health problems "on my watch," he said.

Hayes spoke about the new additions to the Farm Show Complex and about the good work of Stakeholders and the state dairy industry.

Ralph Heffner, chair of the Pacesetter Award Committee, presented the first Pacesetter awards at the breakfast.

"We created the award to recognize individuals or organizations who have contributed significantly to a positive image for Pennsylvania's dairy industry," said Heffner. "The prosperity of the industry rests on the vital contributions of people and organization like those we are honoring."

The Business Planning Assistance Program included success stories by a couple of farm families. From left, Kevin and Jennie Richael, Sunrise Dairy, Stoneboro, and Joyce and David Zimmerman, Meadowview Farm, Reinholds. At far right is Joel Rotz, Stakeholders board president.

try," said Heffner. "The prosperity of the industry rests on the vital contributions of people and organization like those we are honoring."

Luke Brubaker, of Brubaker Farms in Mount Joy, accepted the honor from Heffner. Brubaker, with his two sons Mike and Tony and families, milk 600 cows in a modern dairy facility designed for cow comfort, employee performance, and environmental stewardship. The farm has a 23,600-pound herd average.

The Brubaker family has been recognized nationally for their environmental stewardship. They employ the latest in dairy production technology and herd health management.

Land O'Lakes, Inc. was recognized with a Pacesetter Award for its investment in the future of the dairy industry in the state and surrounding region.

In 2000, Land O'Lakes made a major investment in the state dairy industry by expanding its Carlisle butter plant. The $28 million expansion doubled the plant's capacity, now able to handle 1.6 billion pounds of milk per year. The plant can produce about 530,000 pounds of cream and 270,000 pounds of butter per day. It can process 15 percent of the milk produced in Pennsylvania.

The cooperative has about 5,300 members, more than 2,000 of whom are in Pennsylvania. Land O' Lakes, according to Heffner, actively promotes agriculture in the U.S. and abroad through its foundation, trade mission, and other programs.

The cooperative also supports legislation to create a more viable future for dairy farmers.

The Pacesetter Award was created to recognize individuals, companies, or organizations who bring positive recognition to the dairy industry, create positive attitudes about the industry among producers and their families, recognize dairy food processing and distribution businesses that maintain and invest in a long-term commitment to the state dairy food industry, and create a more positive recognition for the overall industry.

Stakeholders will recognize up to three recipients throughout the year. Qualified nominations can be submitted anytime to the board.

To receive an application, contact Alan Bair, facilitator, Pennsylvania Dairy Stakeholders, at (717) 948-6328 or nab4@psu.edu.

Seed Council Reviews 'Onerous' Issues At Annual Meeting

ANDY ANDREWS

Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTERVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Compared to a quarter of a century ago, today's seed industry issues are more "onerous than any issues we have faced in our industry," said a noted trade representative.

Don Wertman, northeast regional vice president of the American Seed Trade Association (ASTA), spoke about the issues confronting a consolidating industry Wednesday morning.

Wertman spoke to about two dozen seed and other agri-industry representatives at the PennAg Industries Association Seed Council annual meeting at the Comfort Inn/Sherwood Knoll Restaurant near Centerville.

The Council meeting focused on several controversial issues, but none was more predominant at the meeting than invasive species.

Wertman, who has spent about 20 years in the seed industry, spoke about the "new devil," he said, called invasive species.

An invasive species is a plant that can spread in an environment and overtake other plants. The amount of communication on this issue alone, according to the ASTA member, is "tremendous."

One type of invasive species is the quackgrass weed. The noxious weed is on practically every sort of state "weed list."

However, native species groups have convinced state departments of transportation and turnpike officials not to use certain species simply because they were not "native." While it is OK for a farmer to grow tall fescue for whatever reasons, seed suppliers to department of transportation officials using the seed on the nation's roadways look toward weed lists put out by a variety of state organizations.

Virginia, according to Wertman, has an "invasive species" list under way that includes tall fescue. Some governmental agencies put out their own lists that remain unofficial.

Native plant society members believe that areas of this country should be "protected" and use only native plants, what existed in this part of the world in the pre-European colonization days.

Non-native plants on the lists have included Kentucky Bluegrass, timothy, orchardgrass, bromegrass, clovers, crown vetch, birdsfoot trefoil, and others.

Several other environmental organizations such as Greenpeace, the National Conservancy, Sierra Club, and others are lobbying for the return of native species. So plants used to maintain heavily sloped regions, regraded zones, and other nonagricultural areas that traditionally use crown vetch may have to find another

"mix" for cover.

Virginia has a "nasty list," said Wertman. On Dec. 18, he said, ASTA general council will sit with Virginia representatives to review the list. Wertman wants them to be able to prove that those plant species on the list cause economic harm. What risk analysis studies were done, if any?

Many groups are pushing these lists simply to protect tiny ecosystems — little environments deemed worth preserving. But to litigate for one small area, while adversely affecting major economic enterprises, is like "throwing the baby out with the bathwater," said Wertman.

The groups seek to protect "natural areas" of the Northeast. Yet Wertman knows of no "natural area," he said, with a region that has at least 400 years of cultivation and civilization. If such an area exists, "it must be under a big rock somewhere," he said.

President Clinton signed an executive order to establish an Invasive Plant Council. While the government is in the process of setting up a management plan, there is still so much misinformation out there, Wertman noted. There has been no "national list" established.

The issue of invasive species may come down to how willing the industry will be to finance litigation to stop the promulgation of lists such as Virginia's.

Seed growers should be aware of what's going on, according to Wertman. "We have to be diligent or we're going to be legislated out of selling some of these species," he said.

Other "onerous" issues at the forefront include the biotech "front," said Wertman. Many environmentalist groups want a "pushback" on genetically modified organisms, or GMO, crops.

For the industry, seven companies are represented at the state council. That includes about 18 active and 16 associate members.

About 20 companies are represented at ASTA. And industry needs to become more involved.

Because of the Starlink corn issue, in which some seed genetics entered the greater supply of corn from pollen transfers and other methods, the export markets are at "an international crisis," Wertman said. Detection methods have become so refined — down to the parts per million and beyond.

Proposed legislation in New York would have halted GMO research for five years. The five-year moratorium would essentially have "closed up the college at Cornell," he said.

Another issue is intellectual property rights. ASTA is pursuing

(Turn to Page 37)

ing means to ensure that seed genetic "copyrights" are enforced for manufacturers on overseas markets.

"You know, it's those issues that come up out of nowhere that we need to be prepared for," Wertman said. "It's those issues out of left field that can impact our industry."

Fred Grau, Grasslyn, Inc., in State College, ASTA representative to the Mid-Atlantic Exotic Pest Plant Council (EPPC), said though no official lists exists for PennDOT or the state turnpike commission, Maryland's highway department considers crown vetch and tall fescue invasive plants.

The core group that is "riding the bus," in terms of the invasive species lists, is the "hard eco-left," said Grau.

They present the need for preservation as a "religious mindset."

The Mid-Atlantic EPPC is a 501C3 charitable organization that anybody can join. ASTA, headquartered in Washington, D.C., needs industry members to work on ways to ensure the plant species necessary for growers who supply departments of transportation are not on the national list, if it ever becomes established.

Walt Peechatka, executive director of PennAg Industries, noted this was the first Seed Council meeting since the old Pennsylvania Seed Council was dissolved and became part of PennAg last year.

A big issue faced by PennAg is the increasing domination of rural township supervisor boards by those who don't understand agriculture and don't have an ag policy.

PennAg, noted Peechatka, is working with the State Association of Township Supervisors on a policy book for agriculture in townships.

PennAg works to ensure the townships do not violate the Ag Security Act, Right to Farm legislation, and Nutrient Management legislation in place which preempt township provisions.

Jim Adams, PennAg Industries Legislative Committee member, said the organization is thinking about creating a coalition committee legislative liaison position, not a lobbyist but a person who could help during the legislative process and be active in the ag community.

Dr. Paul Bachman, associate dean of research and graduate education at Penn State, spoke about the huge turnovers that have occurred at the university (90 people in more than three years) to retirement and other reasons. Many have not been replaced.

He also spoke about the invasive species issue. He noted that one researcher found out that for a certain plant, the bluestem, an important forage grass in the western U.S., though the species are similar, one biotype can be different from the next. The Maine bluestem can differ in biotype from the Texas bluestem.

As a result, if native species are required on state highway projects, a cottage industry would have to be established to supply the seed as part of the request process.

Looking at "ecotypes and biotypes becomes rather daunting to think about," said Bachman.

But researchers at Penn State continue to embrace the values of biotech. In the future, value-added properties can be added to corn to help suppress mastitis in cows, or be provided with antioxidant values (similar to edible corn varieties) for animals, or corn grains with vaccination capabilities.

Penn State is considering changing the name of the Agronomy Department to the Plant and Soils Science Department.

ment. This reflects a national trend in falling enrollments in agronomy departments across the country.

At Penn State, graduation of agronomists has fallen back. "There's no demand (in the industry) for them," Bachman said.

The university recently made a bid for an additional 60 acres of land from an adjoining farm in Landisville, but lost it at auction, Bachman said. A few more acres to continue Penn State research programs at the research center in Landisville are being considered, noted Bachman.

Other topics included at the meeting were mandatory non-binding arbitration, seed quality issues, committee reports, and other Seed Council business matters.

 3. Gradually blend caramel sauce into eggs in medium bowl. Stir in peanuts; pour over baked crust. Sprinkle with marshmallows and chocolate chips.
 4. Bake for 8 to 10 minutes more or until marshmallows are lightly browned. Cool completely. Cut into bars.
- Microwave: To melt caramels in microwave, reduce water to 2 tablespoons. Microwave caramels and water in small deep glass bowl on HIGH (100% power) for 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 minutes or until sauce is smooth, stirring every minute.

 - 3 tablespoons heavy cream
1. Melt butter and chocolate in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly. Cool slightly.
 2. Beat sugar, eggs and vanilla with mixer at high speed for 5 minutes. Beat in chocolate mixture at low speed; stir in flour and walnuts just until blended (mixture will be thick).

 4. Spread half the brownie mixture into lightly greased foil-lined 9 x 9 x 2-inch pan. Bake at 350°F for 8 minutes. Pour caramel mixture over brownies in pan. Crumble remaining brownie mixture over caramel layer. Bake for 20 minutes more. Cool completely in pan.

 3. Stir in chocolate chips and vanilla extract, stirring until chips are melted. Remove from heat; stir in walnuts.
 4. Immediately spread into prepared pan. Refrigerate overnight. Cut into 1-inch squares. Store in airtight container in refrigerator. For creamier fudge, let stand at room temperature 1 hour before serving.
- Rocky Road Variation: Stir an additional 1 1/2 cups miniature marshmallows into fudge with walnuts, stirring just until combined.

 3. Serve as a spread with crackers or vegetables.

Holiday Helpers

The holidays are always busy. Make use of these easy tips to save time.

- Always melt caramels with water, milk or cream. As a rule of thumb, use 24 caramels with 2 tablespoons liquid. Heat over low heat, stirring constantly, or microwave for 1 to 3 minutes, stirring every minute. Use as a glaze on cakes or serve over ice cream.
- Chocolate-covered cherries are a wonderful holiday treat that also can be used as a garnish for cakes, ice cream and other desserts. Just drain red or green maraschino cherries with stems on paper towels, then dip them in melted white or semisweet chocolate. Set on waxed paper and let harden.
- Add maraschino cherry juice to ginger ale; garnish with red and green maraschino cherries for a festive nonalcoholic drink.
- For easy caramel candies, place 4 pecan halves in spoke fashion on a microwaveable plate. Top with a caramel and microwave on High (100% power) 20 to 30 seconds or until softened. Top with chocolate chips and let stand to melt; spread chocolate. Cool before eating.
- For a snack mix that's good for holiday get-togethers, combine miniature marshmallows, dried fruit (such as dried cherries), nuts and cereal or popcorn. Store in an airtight container.
- Make brownies special by topping a pan of hot, freshly baked brownies with miniature marshmallows. Allow to soften slightly. Drizzle with melted chocolate and a sprinkling of nuts, if desired.
- Cherry ice cubes add a festive touch to holiday punches and other beverages. Just put one maraschino cherry in each compartment of an ice cube tray. Cover with water (or orange juice or lemonade); freeze overnight.
- For a quick caramel sauce, melt a 14-ounce bag of caramels with 2/3 cup light cream or half-and-half. Stir constantly until smooth. Serve slightly warm over cake or use as a dipping sauce with fresh fruits or cookies.

CREAM CHEESE FUDGE

4-ounces unsweetened chocolate, chopped coarse
4 3-ounce packages cream cheese
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 pound confectioners' sugar, sifted

Line an 8-inch square pan with foil, allowing foil to hang over edges. In top of double boiler, set pan over simmering, not boiling water, heat chocolate, stirring frequently, until melted. Remove from heat. Cool slightly.

In large mixing bowl, using an electric mixer on medium speed, beat cream cheese until smooth. Add vanilla and salt. Gradually add confectioners' sugar. Beat until smooth. Add melted chocolate to cream cheese mixture. Beat until combined. Spread mixture in prepared pan. Smooth top of fudge. Chill until firm, at least one hour. To remove fudge from pan, lift edges of foil and invert on cutting board. Carefully peel foil from fudge. Cut into squares and store in refrigerator.

On Being a Farm Wife (and other hazards)

Joyce Bupp

Your grandma — or maybe great grandma — probably wore one a lot.

With it she gathered eggs, carried a few potatoes or turnips, wiped a sticky face or a perspiring forehead, dabbed up minor spills and kept her few everyday dresses clean for use several days in a row.

But how many people don aprons today? I mean besides those nifty barbecue ones for the guys who like to do the outdoor grilling bit. How many of us who daily poke around the kitchen tie on one of those traditional clothing coverings before we get started measuring and mixing?

Not me. Not usually, anyway. Still, there I was, tying on an apron a few days ago over my jeans and turtleneck. Because I was baking a pie. And — at least for me — pie baking is messy; I end up dusted with flour from head to toe.

Or did. Before I started taking the shortcut.

having donned the apron, from habit, I poured my homemade pumpkin pie filling into a frozen pie shell and popped it in the oven. And did it with the same absolute lack of "guilt trip" I find in whipping up instant potato flakes with milk and butter to hold gravy.

Fact is, guys, as our lives get busier and busier, we're all looking for shortcuts to the traditional things. And, in reality, it's often more economical anymore to use prepared shortcuts, rather than starting from scratch, even before figuring in one's time.

And never do we need shortcuts more than during this busy holiday season, when we try to cram in all the extra special things of the season. Thus, you'll find more and more of us printing out holiday list mailing labels on our computers, maybe even sending e-cards to our e-pals via e-mail. That's after we've finished e-retailing with an e-Santa at an e-mall.

It's become a breeze to bag the roll-out, cut-out, decorated cookies in favor of the slice-off kind with a seasonal motif pre-printed in the dough. Or dropping them via a bag mix to which we add milk and eggs. And, in a pinch, a gift doesn't have to be wrapped, it can be tucked into those wonderful decorative bags under a fluff of colorful tissue paper, and still look beautifully festive.

A local supermarket flyer came just days ago featuring a full-color, four-page insert crammed with photos of lovely, luscious pre-prepared holiday food trays: veggie, meats, cheeses, meats and cheeses mixed, shrimp, assorted breads, cookies. All lovingly appointed with decorative touches and pitch-out containers.

An hour or two after perusing that, I spotted containers of ready-to-stuff homemade stuffing in a meat retailer's deli-display. And then there are the pre-stuffed birds, pre-cooked whole hams, even order out a whole holiday dinner. Which, if you have to prepare for several days, serve and then clean it all up for the better part of the holiday, that option looks more inviting all the time.

Is my age showing here...or what?

But of all the shortcuts we might concoct — in reality or our dreams — my hands-down favorite this year is the instant, decorative, holiday gingerbread house. So easy, a 5-year-old can do it. Really.

I have seen and become a believer.

Actually, the festive gingerbread house came as a kit, complete with icing bag and appropriate candies to add all the colorful decorative touches. Our daughter found it at a mass marketer and snatched it up for use as a family project for the kids. It's sort of like those real houses that arrive in pieces on one big truck. Hammer together Part A to Part B, then attach to Part C. Only in the case of the gingerbread house kit, you glue — or goo those parts together with instant squeeze-and-stick frosting.

Plunk it next to a cherry red poinsettia and — viola! — picture-perfect seasonal display.

Having seen this, I've forgiven myself for never having done a gingerbread house from scratch for my kids. No one had devised instant ones in a kit two decades ago.

With all the wonderful cooking and entertaining shortcuts which keep rolling out of the food marketing business, we kitchen engineers may soon be able to relegate our aprons to the endangered-species list.

Something tells me I should feel more guilty about that than I do.

Experience Teaches City Slicker Truth About Farming

SUSAN SULLIVAN
Special To Lancaster Farming

I have always envied farmers. Growing up in a very urban area, about 20 miles west of New York City, my view of farmers was limited to television commercials and one or so "country drives." To me, a farmer was someone who drove a tractor; had trained cows that laid around in a field; had winters off; raised nondescript dogs that chased people and cars; and waved to everyone.

So after a really "fun" divorce, very close neighbors telling me what to do, and my children becoming street smart; I decided to move to the country and become a farmer. I bought a small farm, complete with house, barn, pond, and fields. I was on my way to the laid back life of farming, so I thought.

My experiences from that day on, have taught me, never to assume how easy someone's life appears. Now, my view of farmers is that they aren't laid back, they are exhausted. Their cows aren't trained; they are just resting up for the next freedom run (through your body) to the neighbor's lawn and flower bed.

Usually, the neighbor lives far away so that it takes all day to get the cows home. I know now that electric fences are designed to jump start your entire body, after you have succeeded in getting the cows back. I've learned that two barn cats can make 50; that roaming chickens never lay eggs, they just relieve themselves on the front porch.

Hand-raised geese become disturbed pit bulls in feathers. Pigs are not for riding nor for sledding with (they hog the sled). Cute, little groundhogs are really nasty, destructive creatures with a thousand lives or a thousand relatives. And last but not least: I've learned that nondescript farm dogs are really socially maladjusted, egomaniacs that think they rule the world.

But to be very honest, farming is not a way of life that you can give up or would want to after you have tasted it. Each day is a lesson, an adventure, and a memory. For me to reach my goal of being a farmer, I need to be first a vet, chemist, weather-forecaster, mechanic, and an economic wizard. I need to work long, long hours with very dangerous equipment and uncooperative co-workers (mainly cows).

So, I am just very proud to live among farmers; to know some as friends; and to have worked for some. I believe that my children and myself, have immensely benefited from knowing and living among, some very amazing people called farmers.

Tranquil moments on the farm are few for Susan Sullivan.

Gifts of Caring
"He's making my list and checking it twice, going to find out who's naughty or nice."
These famous words to a well-known Christmas carol make us think of the gifts that "Santa" will leave under the tree. Perhaps we should take these words into consideration when we shop this holiday season and be "nice" in our gift giving. This year give some gifts that show you care, that you want to share your time and yourself with others.

The holidays give us the great opportunity to teach our children what caring is all about. Search for gifts that allow you to share time and build relationships.
"Rather than viewing gifts as 'products,' try seeing them as vehicles for bringing family members together," says Matt Kaplan, associate professor of intergenerational programs and aging.
Give a mixing bowl with chocolate chips, measuring cups, measuring spoons, spatula, wooden spoon, and similar items in it. Include a coupon worth one cooking lesson and be willing to devote time to teach your child how to make chocolate chip cookies.

With today's busy schedule an evening at home with the entire family may be a rare event. A popcorn package with a coupon for an evening video session is a great gift for children. Just be sure you give the time to sit and enjoy the night together.
Give a model kit and a coupon for two hours of assistance in building the model. It is important to schedule this time together.
If your child loves the outdoors, give them a pair of mittens. Include a coupon redeemable for a snowman building adventure followed by a warm cup of cocoa inside.
Grandparents often find it difficult to buy gifts for grandchildren. Why not try an alternate route by giving something you already own. You might let your grandchildren pick out a piece of crystal or jewelry. Another idea is to take your grandchildren on a treasure hunt in your attic. The "new find" could be brought home or kept at grandpa's for a special toy.

As adults, we need to be reminded to care for ourselves also over the holidays. Allow some time to soak in the bath or read a good book over the holidays. Schedule an afternoon or evening to meet a friend for tea and dessert. This could be during the holidays or in January when you can relax without the thoughts of all your holiday duties.
Plan for a visit to a local event, a play or concert with a friend. It's important to find time to relax and socialize. Caring for yourself is the most important gift you can give your family.
Give some humor over the holidays. Humor is a great stress reliever and relaxer. It is recommended that we laugh 20 times a day for good health. Exchange nominal gag gifts with everyone. See who can write the silliest poem or decorate the craziest cookie. Happy times together become the memories that we share at family reunions and other gatherings.

Give as a family. Together the family might sing at a nursing home or cook and deliver meals to a soup kitchen or homeless shelter. You might help wrap gifts for a childcare agency. Local service agencies are always looking for volunteers. Locate one that meets your family's needs and volunteer as a family for a day.
"The essence of the great gift is that it helps us locate the 'we' not the 'me'," Kaplan says. "Let's use this holiday season as a time to journey beyond our private worlds and feel — and be — closer to our loved ones."

Holiday Ideas To Connect Young People With Elders

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — As the holidays approach, both younger and older people will be buying gifts for loved ones. But gift-giving doesn't have to be an inconvenience or empty ritual, says an intergenerational specialist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.
"Rather than viewing gifts as 'products,' try seeing them as ways to bring people together," said Matthew Kaplan, associate professor of intergenerational programs and aging. "In that light, the search for the perfect gift becomes a search for ways to share time and build relationships."
Gift-giving has become increasingly difficult, Kaplan explains. "Social scientists say we're busier than we used to be and more of us are living apart. Even families who live under the same roof are spending less time together. This raises concerns about family cohesion, particularly between younger and older members who need it the most.

"This separation has a profound impact on our lives," he said. "Young people are in need of guidance and nurturing. 'Going it alone' also can be difficult for elders. When older people become socially isolated, they often experience more physical and psychological stress and decline."
Kaplan sees holidays as a great opportunity to bring older and younger family members together. "Choose activities that tie into what people — whatever their age — have in common," Kaplan says. "Successful joint activities involve mutual interests, such as eating, talking, singing, dancing and crafts. Activities that accentuate shared membership in a family or community also work well."

Kaplan suggests some gift ideas that older adults and young people can give to each other, as well as gifts they can develop together for others.
Gifts from Old to Young
• A family recipe.
• An heirloom that reflects a shared family heritage.
• A sewing, knitting or crocheting project. You each can complete segments of the overall item.
• A quilt made with a material or design that has family significance. "Patricia Polacco in the children's book, 'The Keeping Quilt,' tells the story of a quilt made from material drawn from the clothing of four generations of family members," Kaplan says.

• Hand down a hobby, such as wood carving or coin collecting.
• A puzzle you can do together.
• Gather ingredients for a joint baking/cooking session. "This one's not for the fainthearted," Kaplan says. "Upon delivering the gift, you may be confronted with that baffled, disappointed, 'Huh, what's the big idea?' kind of look."
• A model kit. "Choose a level of difficulty that will stretch your recipient's problem-solving abilities," Kaplan suggests.

• Seeds for a garden to work in together.
• A family album.
Gifts From Young to Old
• Supplies to make a book about family history or identity. "You might include newspaper clippings, photos and stories that you write together," Kaplan says.
• An oral history or biography booklet based on an interview conducted with the adult.
• A computer game. "This is ideal for the computer-shy adult," Kaplan says. "But make sure you are around to help install the game and review the instructions."
Joint Giving And Co-producing
• Make a presentation, sing a song, or play instruments together at a nursing home, a children's ward at a hospital.

Cooking Angel Brings Good Tidings Year-Round

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

WRIGHTSVILLE (York Co.)

— Holiday symbols, including angels, intertwine with the Christmas story. But for Debbie Reynolds, angels are a year-round symbol of joy and purpose.

Every day she accessorizes her outfit with one of the more than 50 different angels pins from her collection.

Debbie herself emulates an angel of sorts. According to the dictionary definition, an angel manifests goodness, purity, and unselfishness.

And those who know Debbie are often recipients of her goodness. To many, Debbie is a cooking angel who is always giving away one of her many culinary specialties.

Most people with the health problems similar to those that plagued Debbie would not continue cooking. Eleven years ago she was diagnosed with gastroparesis, an incurable disease that requires a bland diet.

Debbie considers it ironic that as a nurse, working with gastroenterology patients, she herself became afflicted with an incurable gastritis disease.

"I should be dead," said Debbie, whose weight spiraled to a mere 80 pounds at one point. Until the last few weeks, she was hooked up to feeding tubes daily for 18 hours out of 24.

"It's a miracle I'm alive. I would never have made it without God," she said. Her survival has given her purpose. Medical doctors often ask Debbie to encourage other patients who face insurmountable illnesses.

As a former Miss Hope for the Cancer Society, a spokesperson who teaches people early detection signs, talking before an audience was part of her training.

"If you feel sorry for yourself—you're done for," Debbie said of first-hand experience in coping with illness. On the other hand, it isn't enough to just not feel sorry for oneself.

"Christianity is a big part of my life and who I am," Debbie said of finding strength in coping. "I study the Bible twice a day."

She also volunteers for a local cardiac rehabilitation facility.

While many people associate holiday celebrations with children and extended family members gathering together, Debbie has neither.

An only child, she and her husband Larry have no children. But Debbie focuses on what she does have: "a gem of a husband" (they've been married 25 years), "and wonderful loving friends and my church," she said.

Debbie grew up watching her mother and grandmother cook and help her dad made perogies from scratch in honor of his Polish background. As a child, Debbie was a national baton twirler, but she always took an interest in cooking.

What Debbie didn't learn at home, she learned from taking classes in culinary arts and from a neighbor.

"I take classes whenever I see them offered," she said. These include canning, Italian foods, pasta, baking, and low-fat cooking. A neighbor taught her to can meat, make fastnachts, and bread.

Several times weekly, Debbie bakes and cooks for the sheer joy of doing it and then gives the food away.

"I love to share," she said.

"I'm old-fashioned," Debbie said. "I think when a husband comes home at the end of the day, he deserves a good, hot meal from scratch, not out of a box."

Another project that utilizes her cooking expertise is a weekly Bible study at her church. Every Wednesday evening, a light meal is served to participants of the study. Although members take turns preparing the meals, Debbie volunteers her services weekly.

She also sends in many recipes to Lancaster Farming and other cooking publications.

Although the Reynolds do not live on a farm, they spend many hours with close friends on the farm. One of their annual highlights is helping with on-farm butchering between Christmas and New Year's week.

The Reynolds also feed baby calves and help with baling hay.

Life isn't complete without Buffy and Dodi, to which Debbie refers to as "our babes." The well-fed dogs are fed — not dog food — but from homecooked meals that Debbie prepares for her husband.

Debbie Reynolds prepares these culinary specialties to give to neighbors and acquaintances.

The Reynolds home is filled with cheery, country decor, complete with many of Debbie's handicrafts, crocheting, cross stitching, and quilting projects. Her kitchen cabinets painted in colors of brick red and cream serve as a sunny place to cook, can, and bake. Here are a few of her easy recipes that readers may enjoy during the busy holiday season.

Childproof Holidays

Shopping. Baking. Decorating. Life gets hectic during the holidays.

But whatever else you have on that "to-do" list, put this first: Childproof the house!

Children, especially those under the age of five, see Christmas trees, Menorahs, ornaments and candles as mysterious and magical things. They want to touch, chew, and play with them. But if children get a hold of the wrong objects, they can be seriously injured. Don't spend your holidays in the emergency room. Take a few precautionary steps now to protect your children so they, too, can enjoy the season.

When your kids smell the aroma of baking cookies, fruitcakes and Yule logs, they naturally want to be in the kitchen. But unless you can supervise them carefully, keep them out. The kitchen is one of the most dangerous rooms in your home.

But just in case your kids do sneak into the kitchen when you're not looking:

- Keep hot foods and beverages away from the edges of counters and tables and don't place them on top of tablecloths or place mats.

- Unplug the beater or other electrical appliances, wrap up the cords and put them away. Your children should not have access to any "live" electrical appliance cords. Also, place covers over all electrical outlets. Both cords and outlets are sources of electric shock.

- Use back burners and turn pot handles towards the back of the stove when cooking.

- Put guards on stove knobs so your children cannot turn them on when you're not looking. As you know, children can get hurt in any room of the house, not just the kitchen. So for their protection...

- Don't let children under four have hard candies, nuts or similar seasonal foods. Hard, round foods such as candies, nuts, grapes, popcorn, raw carrots and even raisins can get lodged in children's throats and block the passage of air through their windpipes.

- Pick up after yourself once you've finished making holiday decorations. Small crafting items such as safety pins, buttons and tacks should not be left within your children's reach because they can swallow and choke on them.

- Don't display any decorations that can easily break or have sharp edges. Place glass ornaments, for example, far out of the reach of small children. They could grab, drop, break them and then cut themselves on the shattered pieces. Also, don't use decorations with tiny pieces that can be swallowed. And avoid trimmings that look like candy or food because a child might try to eat them. Put ornaments high up on the Christmas tree out of your children's reach.

- Place your Christmas tree in a sturdy stand and anchor it down so your children cannot knock it over.

- Keep children away from lights and other electrical decorations. These items can shock or electrocute curious kids. Lights are also a fire hazard. So keep them away from gifts, paper ornaments, curtains and drapes. If you have very small children, you might consider skipping the electrical lights on your Christmas tree.

- Keep Menorahs and other candle holders and candle decorations well out of the reach of children. Flickering flames fascinate young ones, and they can easily burn themselves or start fires.

- Choose toys for infants and small children with care. Make certain that what you give them doesn't have small pieces. Small parts and pieces can get caught in their throats, noses or ears. Also avoid toys with sharp points, sharp edges, strings and cords. And don't give older children toys that might be dangerous to their younger siblings.

- Keep holly and mistletoe out of the reach of children. They are poisonous and can be fatal to a small child. Poinsettia leaves are not fatal if swallowed, but can cause a skin rash and severe upset stomachs. If a child ingests any of these holiday plants, call 911 immediately.

- Purchase tree tinsel or artificial icicles made from non-leaded material. Leaded materials are sometimes poisonous.

- Keep fire salts out of the reach of your children. These salts produce pretty colored flames when thrown on wood fires, but they contain heavy metals that can cause vomiting if ingested.

- Don't buy your kids electrical toys that are not UL/FM approved.

- Keep alcoholic beverages out of the reach of your children. A child does not have to drink much to get alcohol poisoning. Remember to clean-up half-empty glasses after a party.

- Learn CPR and First Aid.

During the holidays, you should also take extra care to protect those "kids" who have four legs and a tail. Pets are susceptible to many of the same holiday dangers as children. Take the same precautions in the holiday season to protect your pet as you do to protect your children. Also...

- Refrain from using chemical sprays that extend the life of your Christmas tree. Some of them are poisonous and can be fatal to your pet.

- Don't feed your pet candy, especially chocolate, no matter how hard he begs. Chocolate is toxic to animals and can induce vomiting, restlessness, heart palpitations or death. And make sure you tell your children not to share candy with the family pet.

- Don't give your dog poultry bones, which can splinter and cause digestive problems or even death.

- Don't feed your pets too much "people food" which can upset their stomachs. Instead, give them some of their favorite dog or cat treats during special meals.

- Don't give your pets toys made of small parts or soft material that they can chew up and swallow.

- Don't up catnip or other edibles in hanging stockings, especially ones by a fireplace.

- Don't shut pets in a room away from parties and family gatherings. Left out, a pet may become stressed and escape through the front door as guests arrive and depart. Don't give your pets alcoholic beverages.

They don't have the body mass to adjust to alcohol's effects, and too much can be fatal.

Some of the safety tips on keeping your children safe at home were provided by the National Safe Kids Campaign. For more information on keeping your children safe, contact the National Safe Kids Campaign in Washington, D.C.

ANSWER — Nancy Allwine, Harrisburg, lost a recipe that she clipped from this column, she thinks, in 1994. The recipe was for macaroni salad, and included a cooked dressing using vinegar, turmeric, sugar, and water; mayonnaise was added after it was cooked. Thanks to an anonymous reader for sending a recipe that she thinks is the one Nancy is looking for. "It is a great salad, and everyone who tastes it, always enjoys it," the reader writes.

Macaroni Salad

3 cups cooked macaroni
2 hard-boiled eggs, chopped
1 cup chopped celery
¾ cup shredded carrots
1 small onion, chopped

Dressing

1 cup sugar
¼ cup vinegar
½ teaspoon mustard
½ teaspoon butter
2 eggs, beaten
Combining dressing ingredients and boil until slightly thickened. When cool, add 2½ cups mayonnaise. Mix all ingredients together and chill.

ANSWER — For the person who wanted a recipe for maple walnut fudge, here is one from a long time reader.

Maple Walnut Fudge

1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
1 cup maple syrup
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
¾ cup half-and-half
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped walnuts plus additional pieces for garnish if desired

Line an 8-inch square pan with foil and butter the foil. In a large heavy saucepan, stir together brown sugar, granulated sugar, and maple syrup, corn syrup, half-and-half, and the salt and cook the mixture over moderate heat, stirring and washing down any sugar crystals clinging to the side of the pan and with a brush dipped in cold water, until the sugar is dissolved completely. Bring the mixture to a boil and boil it, undisturbed, until a candy thermometer registers 238 degrees. Remove the saucepan from the heat, add butter and vanilla without stirring them into the mixture, and let the mixture cool until it is 130 degrees. Beat the mixture with a wooden spoon until it begins to lose its gloss, lightens in color, and thickens. (Be careful not to overbeat the mixture or it will become too thick to spread). Stir in quickly the chopped walnuts and spread the fudge immediately in prepared square pan. Score the top of fudge with knife into squares, garnish each square with a walnut piece, and let fudge cool completely. Store the fudge in an airtight container lined with wax paper, separating the layers with wax paper, in a cool place. The fudge keeps for two weeks. Makes about two pounds smooth, creamy fudge.

ANSWER — For those who wanted to present gifts of cakes baked in a jar, here are some recipes from Rachel Glick, New Holland.

Gingerbread In A Jar

2¼ cups all-purpose flour
¾ cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon ground cloves
1 cup butter, softened
¾ cup hot water
½ cup molasses

Preheat oven to 350 degrees (pan method) or 325-degrees for jars. Grease with shortening a 9x9x2-inch baking pan of five crystal jelly jars with straight sides, no bulges in the jars. Also, sterilize the jar by boiling 10 minutes, leave lids and rings in the water until ready to use. Remove jars and allow to air dry and cool before greasing. Use a pastry brush to grease the jars. Do not use vegetable spray.

In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, ginger, cinnamon, and cloves. Stir in butter, water, and molasses until well blended.

Pour into prepared pan or divide equally among the five jars. Place jars on cookie sheet or they'll tip over. Pan method: Bake in preheated 350 degree oven for 40-50 minutes or until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean. Cool slightly on wire rack. Jar method: bake in preheated 325-degree oven for 35-40 minutes or until cake tester inserted deep into the center of each jar comes out clean.

Have lids hot. Take one jar at a time from the oven (using heavy-duty mitts-the jars are hot) and place a lid on, then the ring. Tightly screw on lids. Allow to cool on counter top. You'll know when the jars have sealed, you'll hear a plinking sound. If you don't know whether the jars have sealed, press down on the jar lids, they shouldn't move at all.

Canned Pumpkin Bread

⅔ cup vegetable shortening
4 eggs
⅔ cup water
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cloves
2½ cups granulated sugar
2 cups canned pumpkin
3½ cups all-purpose sugar
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
⅔ cups chopped nuts (if desired)
Makes 8 pints.

In a mixing bowl, combine shortening and sugar. Beat until fluffy, about 5 minutes. Add eggs, pumpkin, and water; beat until blended. In a separate bowl, combine flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt, and spices; stir to blend. Stir into pumpkin mixture. Add nuts and blend well. Pour into greased wide-mouth pint jars, filling them less than half full of batter. Place a cookie sheet on oven shelf and jars on a sheet. Bake at 325-degrees for 25 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Remove jars one at a time from oven. While still hot, clean sealing edge; cover with lid and secure band firmly. Lids should be scalded in boiling water. Baked can be removed in 24 hours.

Trees Offer Many Holiday Choices

COLUMBUS, Ohio - Deciding what toys to buy for the kids is not the only tough decision to make this holiday season. Christmas trees also have many traits and sizes.

Overall appearance, color, needle length, branch characteristics and price are just some of the things to consider, said Randy Heiligmann, Ohio State University Extension forestry specialist.

More than 30 million real Christmas trees are purchased each year in the United States. In Ohio, more than a million families will select their trees at a tree lot or visit an Ohio Christmas tree farm to select and cut their own tree.

The most common question people ask, Heiligmann said, is "Which species should I buy?" "There is no 'right' answer to that question," he said. "The 'right' Christmas tree is very much a matter of personal taste, and consumers need to spend some time learning which species they prefer."

While all Christmas trees are needle-bearing evergreens, there is a great deal of variation among the species. There also can be considerable variation between trees of the same species, depending on where the trees were grown and how they were managed, Heiligmann said.

"A tightly sheared blue spruce will, for example, look very different from one that has been lightly sheared throughout its life," he said.

To make selection a little easier, Christmas tree species can be divided into two groups — pines, such as Scotch and white pine, and the single-needle conifers, including spruces and firs.

The easiest way to tell the two groups apart is pines have their needles attached to branches in groups of two or more, while single-needle conifer needles are individually attached to branches, Heiligmann said. Pines also generally have longer needles and their branches come off the main stem at distinct intervals — called whorls — versus emerging all along the stem as single-needle conifer branches do.

In Ohio, more than 90 percent of the Christmas trees marketed are one of six species: Scotch pine, eastern white pine, blue spruce, Douglas fir, Fraser fir and Canaan fir.

"Each of these species has something unique to offer consumers, whether it's the length of the needles, the aroma or the color of the tree," Heiligmann said.

Here is a brief description of the characteristics of Ohio's six most popular Christmas tree species:

— Scotch pine trees are native to Europe and eastern Asia and historically are the most popular Christmas trees grown and sold in Ohio and throughout the country. Needles are 1 inch to 3 inches long and are somewhat stiff and twisted. The tree is a green to blue-green color, with long branches capable of supporting many decorations and heavy ornaments. Scotch pine is also known to have better needle retention than almost any other Christmas tree species. It is commonly sheared tightly to produce dense foliage, although trees sheared lighter with a more open appearance can be found.

— Eastern white pine, native to eastern North America, is the second most popular pine Christmas tree species. Its needles are 2 inches to 5 inches in length. The soft, flexible needles are yellow-green to blue-green in color. Eastern white pines have slender, flexible branches capable of supporting a few, small decorations. It has very good to excellent needle retention and, like Scotch pine, is most commonly sheared fairly tightly to produce thick foliage.

— Blue spruces are native to high elevations in the mountains of the western United States. This species has become increasingly popular. It has 1-inch to 1.5-inch needles that are very sharply pointed and stiff. The colors of this tree vary from blue-green to silvery-white. Blue spruce branches are relatively stiff and bumpy and will support many decorations and heavy ornaments. Needle retention is good, though it requires consistent watering and will not tolerate dry tree stands. If the stand goes dry, many needles will drop. The tree's sharp needles may make it an inappropriate choice for homes with small children.

— Fraser fir trees are native to high elevations of the southern Appalachian Mountains. This is a fragrant, dark green species whose popularity has increased dramatically in recent years. These trees have half-inch to 1-inch flat needles. This species has a strong natural symmetry that requires less shearing and allows for attractive trees over a wide range of density. It also has rather strong, smooth branches to support decorations and deep green, relatively soft foliage. It does an excellent job of retaining needles and produces the balsam aroma commonly associated with the Christmas holiday.

— Canaan firs are native to West Virginia and Virginia. It is a relatively new Christmas tree variety that is rapidly gaining acceptance by both Christmas tree growers and consumers. These trees have three-fourth-inch to 1.5-inch needles. Like the Fraser fir, the species has attractive dark green, relatively soft foliage, rather stiff branches to support decorations and is available in a wide range of densities. It has good to very good needle retention and also produces a balsam aroma.

— Douglas fir is native to the mountains of the western United States. This tree is popular throughout the country. The needles are flat and 1 inch to 1.5 inches in length. The trees range from green to blue-green. When the needles are crushed, the Douglas fir gives off a mild, almost sweet smell. It has soft, attractive foliage and very good needle retention. This species has a strong natural symmetry, requiring less shearing and allowing for attractive trees with a variety of densities.

Red And White Promoter Walks Across America

LINDA WILLIAMS

Bedford Co. Correspondent

EVERETT (Bedford Co.) — Ninety-year-old Elmer Carpenter has always been one to express his opinions.

When other farmers were quickly disposing of red and white calves born of black and white Holsteins, Elmer studied the situation and found these more colorful offsprings to be only recessive genes.

So enamored was he with the red and whites he joined in their promotion and was the founder of the first Red and White newsletter still being published at Crystal Springs near Breezewood.

One of his earliest comments was, "There just isn't anything 'purrier' than a whole field of red and white cows in a field of 'yeller' dandelions."

Always a promoter of the breed, Elmer has won many awards with the Red and White Association and has raised a considerable sum of money by auctioning off his own paintings. Elmer has also won awards exhibiting his paintings with the Bedford County Arts Council.

Now, at the age of 90, this opinionated and strong-minded retired farmer has undertaken yet another cause. A supporter of the Green Party and Ralph Nader, he began a cross-country trek on his 90th birthday, September 13.

"My goal is to equal Granny Go," he says. "But, I soon became aware of the fact that woman is as tough as nails with the guts of a grizzly bear."

His trek began after his birthday party attended by more than 100 friends and relatives at Chesapeake Beach, Maryland. Averaging 17 to 20 miles a day, he was near Tuscaloosa, Alabama, when his Achilles tendon acted up forcing him to return to Bedford County for a respite.

He plans to hit the road again in January. If not then, certainly by early spring. A friend, Stanley Hoynitski of the Harrisburg Auto Auction, had lent a motor home and driver to follow Elmer on his endeavors. However, this was a limited offer and Elmer is hoping to find someone else willing to accompany him with a motor home that provides shelter and comfort when needed.

As Elmer walked, he attempted to talk to newspaper editors across the country regarding his causes. "I came to the conclusion that too many papers are now owned by chains," he says. "Most of them didn't care much about my opinions."

His main causes are for campaign finance reform, because he does not want the government to be bought, and his fears for the planet, so there will be one for future generations.

"We are using too much gasoline and not taking care of the water — not taking of our planet," he emphasizes.

Elmer also believes in term limits and a limit of the amount of a donation a person can contribute to a candidate. He thinks the Electoral College is a dinosaur.

Helping with his walk were members of his family, children and grandchildren, who joined in walking on weekends when work schedules permitted.

"Biggest problem," says his daughter, Glenda Truax, "is that he kept getting farther and farther away so it was difficult to catch up with him for just a weekend. Unfortunately, we all have to work during the week."

Elmer's favorite walking shoes are discards from his son, a marathon runner. "He sends me his discards and I get another year out of them," he says proudly.

When the pain first began in his ankle, Elmer attributed it to a sprain. As it worsened, he remembered having a similar discomfort many years previous when he suffered from Achilles Tendonitis.

Returning to Everett, Elmer sought the advice of a specialist in Pittsburgh who agreed and ordered him off his feet for several months. By that time, which was mid-November, he had walked a total of 845.9 miles.

"There are friends and family members who just cannot imagine why we are letting Dad do this," says Glenda. "But, I think it is something he wants to do, and it is a lot better than sitting in a rocking chair staring at the four walls. He always enjoyed his painting so much, but now he has gotten arthritic fingers and cannot do that anymore. Walking is something he can still do and, for the most part, it is good for him."

To help with his expenses, Glenda has set up a "Go Pappy Go" fund at the First American National Bank of Everett, Everett. She is also seriously looking for anyone willing to accompany him from Tuscaloosa to the West Coast in a motor home. "Even if they can only go for a short spurt, it would help," she says.

Days. This year he was the reserve champion sheep showman.

Some of the items they will be taking are canned items, and nonperishable items.

Some of the members of North Mountain will be packing boxes for flood victims around the world in Ephrata on Dec. 28. The club will be helping the Mennonite Central Committee.

4-H bowling night is Feb. 10 at Palmyra.

For community service, the club is collecting soda tabs and doing a food drive for the Ronald McDonald House. There was an officer-training meeting Nov. 25.

Farm Women Name State Scholarship Winners

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent
GLEN ROCK (York Co.) — With funds generated by continuing sales of its popular cookbook, the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women has awarded a record $17,000 in scholarships to students pursuing degrees of advanced education.

Each $1,000 Flora Black scholarships was awarded to applicants pursuing agriculture or home economics related degrees. Another requirement is that applicants' mothers or grandmothers be members of the Farm Women organization. More than $50,000 in scholarships have been awarded since 1994, as cookbook sales have boosted the funding available for the program originally begun in 1960 in memory of the founder of the Pennsylvania of Farm Women. The state group continues to set aside 40-cents from every $3 annual membership to help fund the scholarship as well.

Publishing a cookbook showcasing the culinary talents of the state's rural women was the state project selected by former state Farm Women president Naomi Bupp, Glen Rock.

"Our daughter had been awarded a scholarship, and it was a way I could return that thoughtfulness," she relates. The cookbook project, which she helped to underwrite until it was financially stabilized, has proven wildly successful since the first one rolled off the press and out to the Farm Women at their 1991 Spring Rally.

The hefty, three-pound, soft-covered volume includes 2,240 recipes in a variety of categories and features artwork by York County artist Don Abbott Thomas, whose wife is a member of the Society. After successive printings of the cookbook, more than 24,000 have been sold, with orders from across the country continuing to find their way to Naomi Bupp's rural York County mailbox.

Cookbooks are available at a cost of $23.50, which covers the cost of postage and handling, and may be ordered from Naomi Bupp at 2541 Woodland Road, Glen Rock, PA 17327-8410. Proceeds will continue to help fund scholarships such as those awarded this year to the 17 applicants selected by the committee.

Ephrata Cloister Tours To Recall 1740s Wedding

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — In the mid-1700s, when residents of the Ephrata Cloister were busy producing music, printing books, and building impressive homes, most community members practiced a lifestyle of self-discipline and celibacy. But this holiday season wedding bells will be ringing for one of the Cloister Sisters as the Ephrata Cloister presents the Christmas Candlelight Tours on Dec. 27, 28, 29, and 30.

These special tours will transport visitors back in time to the 1740s when Sister Tabea, and an indentured servant, Daniel Shibley, are to be wed. The program begins at 7 p.m. each evening, and continues on the hour and half-hour until 8:30 p.m. Reservations are required for this event.

"Everyone loves a wedding, and this should be a great one," says Michael Showalter, museum educator. The story, based on real events which occurred at the Ephrata Cloister, will be reenacted by the student historians of the Ephrata Cloister. The students, in grades 7 through 12 from local schools, will portray Sister Tabea, Daniel Shibley, the community's founder Conrad Beissel, and other leading members of the 18th century settlement including Peter Miller and Maria Eicher. The guide for the evening, talkative neighbor, will help to bring the story to life. "These tours are designed to focus on a specific story in Ephrata's history, and they are one of our most popular programs," says Showalter.

Tickets for the hour long tour can be reserved by calling (717) 733-6600 extension 3001. The cost for the tour is $6 for adults, $5.50 for senior citizens, $4 for children ages 6-12. Children under age 6 are free. A special dinner and tour program is also available in cooperation with the Restaurant at Doneckers. Reservations for the dinner program can be made by calling (717) 738-9501.

*As the streams of rain pour out of the sky,
And the sparkles of lightening go flashing by,
And the big, big wheels of thunder roll
He can snuggle back into the telephone pole.*

ANSWER — If you wondered what leaping lords, French hens, swimming swans, and the partridge in the pear tree have to do with Christmas, Richard Herring writes that he found out how the song, "The Twelve Days of Christmas," became a Christmas carol. According to his research, the song was written with a hidden meaning. I don't know if this is true, but he writes that from 1558-1829, Roman Catholics in England were not allowed to practice their faith openly. During this era, the carol was written as a catechism song for young Catholics. The song has two levels of meaning; the surface meaning, plus a hidden meaning known only to members of their church. Each element in the carol has a code word to help children to remember its religious significance. According to the information, the words held the following meaning:

The partridge in a pear tree was Jesus Christ; two turtle doves were the Old and New Testaments; three French hens stood for faith, hope, and love; four calling birds were the four gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. The five golden rings recalled the law, which are the first five books of the Old Testament; the six geese a-laying stood for six days of creation; and seven swans a-swimming represented the sevenfold gifts of the Holy Spirit; prophesy, serving, teaching, exhortation, contribution, leadership, and mercy. The eight maids a milking were the eight beatitudes. Nine ladies dancing were the nine fruits of the Holy Spirit: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, and self control. The 10 lords a-leaping were the 10 commandments; 11 pipers piping stood for the 11 faithful disciples, and 12 drummers drumming symbolized the 12 points of belief in the Apostles' Creed.

Keep These Tips In Mind When Giving To Charities

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Because many charitable organizations increase their solicitations during the holiday season, a consumer scientist in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences offers some tips on charitable giving.

"Charities may increase their solicitations during the last two months of the year for two reasons," says Cathy Bowen, assistant professor of agricultural and extension education. "People often are more generous during the holiday season. They also may be looking for a place to make that final tax-deductible contribution before the tax year ends."

Bowen suggests some things to keep in mind when solicited by charities:

- Never give to a charity you know nothing about.
- Don't feel guilty about not supporting every charity that asks for a contribution.
- Request written information from the charity regarding its programs and finances.
- Don't feel pressured to give on the spot or to allow someone to enter your house to pick up a contribution.
- Do not donate over the phone unless you are familiar with the organization. Hang up on aggressive and harassing solicitors.

- Never give cash, credit card numbers or bank account numbers. Always write a check payable to the charity, so you have a record of your donations.
- Ask who will benefit from your contribution.
- Find out if your contribution is tax-deductible.
- Don't make assumptions when you hear words like "police" or "firefighter" in an organization's name. Although an organization claims it has local ties or works with local police or firefighters, it doesn't necessarily mean contributions will be used locally.

- If solicited in person, always ask to see the solicitor's identification.
- Be aware of statements such as "every penny will go to the charity." All charities have expenses, so check carefully and know where your money goes.
- "Finally, if you find that you are getting too many requests, select one or two causes that you will support and ignore the others," Bowen says. "After doing the initial research to determine if the organizations are ones you would like to support, making future contributions should take very little of your time."

"Of course, every three to four years, you will want to re-evaluate whether you wish to continue supporting the charities selected," she adds.

If you have any questions about charitable giving and taxes, or wish to report a fraudulent or deceptive solicitation, Bowen suggests calling the Pennsylvania Bureau of Charitable Organizations (800-732-0999 within Pennsylvania or 717-783-1720 from outside the state). Information also is available at the bureau's World Wide Web site at www.dos.state.pa.us/charity/index.htm.

Food Poisoning

Food poisoning is a term many people use when they get a foodborne illness. Between 3.3 million and 12.8 million people get food poisoning each year. And almost 4,000 people die from it each year!

People who have food poisoning have symptoms similar to the flu: nausea, diarrhea, fever, stomach cramps, and vomiting. Very young children, older adults, and people sick with another illness may be more susceptible to food poisoning. It could take anywhere from a few hours to a few days for someone to begin feeling ill after contracting a foodborne illness.

Food can be contaminated by any number of harmful microorganisms when it's not handled properly. By being careful, you can reduce your risk of getting sick from a foodborne illness. Follow these steps and be sure to share them with your family and friends!

- Always wash your hands before handling food.
- Wash hands, utensils, cutting boards and work surfaces with hot soapy water after contact with raw meat and poultry.
- Keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot.
- Put all leftovers in the refrigerator right away.

*Antiques CenterAll-Dairy Antiques And Collectibles Show Sets Exhibitor Record

Dr. Darwin G. Braund
Pasto Agriculture Museum
HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Exhibitors came from California and Connecticut, from Vermont and Virginia, and from Maryland, Minnesota, New Jersey, New York, Ohio and, of course, Pennsylvania.

A total of 49 registered and two walk-in exhibitors from 10 states set a new record for the third annual All-Dairy Antiques and Collectibles Show conducted Sept. 22-27, in Harrisburg. Thirty-two exhibitors of general dairy items combined with 13 milk bottle collectors to provide beautiful and educational exhibits of diverse dairy antiques.

This third show was the "breakout" event envisioned by the planners. Following two years of gaining experience, contacts, and a positive reputation for an "up and coming" show, the record number of exhibitors provided a large and varied exhibition in the Pennsylvania Farm Show Complex to appreciative crowds that exceeded attendance during the first two years.

The Cream Separator and Dairy Collector Association was represented by 10 members from five states. Gene Sander, president, and his wife, Pam, drove from Rochester, MN, and exhibited for the second year. Other members exhibiting were Darwin Braund, State College; Martin and Diane Brumbaugh, Curryville; Leslie Firth, Mercer; Mike and Jan Fournier, Swanton, VT; David Morrow, State College; Michele and Jeff Reasner, Newburg; Jim and Martha Roberts, Scio, N.Y.; Clyde Shaver, Middlefield, OH; and Margin and Ellie Stout, Tunkhannock.

One member who didn't exhibit deserves mention. Graeme Reid flew cross country from Tacoma, Washington to see the show he had read about in the Cream Separator and Dairy Newsletter. Was it just a coincidence that he purchased a Reid No. 4 butter worker?

Among the exhibits were those of two well known wood carvers from opposite ends of the country. Glenn and Mary McCune came all the way from California for their first experience at the show. Professor Emeritus Don Ace from State College, returned for the third year with his carvings of dairy cattle and farm and wild animals including birds.

The show officially opened at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 22 although several early birds were wandering through as exhibitors finished their final preparations.

Two "charter" exhibitors returned for their third year. Jim and Martha Roberts, Scio, N.Y., again showed Martha's Milk House. Les Firth, Mercer, had spent much time seeking DeLaval items and designing his beautiful and extensive display.

Almost every aspect of a by-gone era of dairy farming in the late 1800s and early 1900s were represented. However, one piece of early and popular dairy equipment was very prominent — the butter churn. Made in all shapes and sizes from glass, wood, tin, metal and clay (ceramic), they were ubiquitous in exhibits. A popular action exhibit was a large wooden barrel churn powered by a dog treadle. It was from the Pasto Agricultural Museum in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

As his parents and four brothers watch, Joshua Miller, 4, provides "boy power" for a dog treadle that operates a large butter churn. The Chambersburg family visited the show each year since it began three years ago.

Among dozens of glass churns were two complete sets of Dazey Bull's Eye glass churns and three of the rare and increasingly valuable one-quart or No. 10 size.

Ice cream, that favorite of all dairy products, was represented by freezers, advertising, scoops, dippers, containers, and two large posters giving the history of ice cream. Hand-crank freezers, both wood and tin, ranged in size from a rare one-pint White Mountain (salesman's sample) to a 20-quart White Mountain powered by an electric motor. The latter from the Penn State Creamery is still used to show students how to make "homemade" ice cream.

For the first time DeLaval items were featured. Several exhibitors deserve special mention for their DeLaval displays. These include Martin and Diane Brumbaugh, David Dickmyer, Les Firth, and Mike and Jan Fournier. The exhibits of 13 milk bottle collectors added beauty, variety, and additional interest to the overall show.

Special exhibits were provided by Rutter's Dairy, York, which covered the early era of home delivery of milk and other dairy products. Their original horse drawn wagon was used in the 1920s. During the 1930s and '40s, a 1936 Thorne gas/electric truck ran the home delivery routes to families.

The Sunday Harrisburg Patriot News, Oct. 8, 2000, published a feature story with three pictures on the show with the headline, "Dairy memorabilia gaining popularity as collectibles." The lead paragraph said, "An increasing number of collectors who buy everything from old cowbells to antique cream separators are milking their hobby for all its worth." Quoted at length were cream separator and dairy collector members Les Firth, Mike Fournier, and Martha Roberts.

Responses to a written survey sent to exhibitors indicated all were pleased with this third year show. Almost 90 percent of responders said they would exhibit next year (Sept. 22-26, 2001). Almost 86 percent said their level of satisfaction with their sales were either "good" or "very good." Two-thirds of responders rated the overall show "very good" and the rest rated it "good."

The fourth annual show will open 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 22, 2001, and run until Wednesday evening, Sept. 26. Readers are encouraged to put these dates (Sept. 22-26, 2001) on their calendars in order to plan to attend either as an exhibitor or visitor.

Old Chinese Rugs Still Bargains

If it's antique and Chinese, usually price tags are high. An exception are Chinese rugs and carpets.

Compared to Oriental carpets from Iran and Turkey of the same vintage, Chinese examples are on the low side. If you bid at a recent Skinner auction of Oriental rugs and carpets, you could have walked away with a fine 10' 10" x 8' Chinese carpet for $3,105. Although the rug and the others that were sold had slight wear, the rugs were in good shape.

Listed as 18th century, but with wear and repairs, a rug with a circular cloud medallion surrounded by colorful peony blossoms and butterflies (7' 9" x 5' 9") sold at $690. Could be there was uncertainty about its age. Not many 18th century Chinese carpets are seen outside of museums. Most that come to market are from the turn-of-the-century to the 1930s — despite the fact that they are often dated earlier.

The oldest Chinese rugs still existing were probably woven near the end of the Ming period or during the first half of the 17th century. Some of those rugs were intended for the Imperial court or for wealthy Mandarins. The rug had a pile of silk attached to the warp and weft of cotton. Others were made completely of silk. The most luxurious were rugs of silk woven on a web of metal threads. The central medallion, surrounded by a diaper pattern is one of the earliest designs. However, many had all-over patterns of octagonal shapes.

Another early pattern had a field completely covered with a swastika-fret and market at regular intervals with diagonal rows of bats (a symbol of happiness). Other early motifs were dragons and flowers. Corners often contained simple scrolls.

Chinese rugs from the late 19th to early 20th century were mostly made at the inland Chinese weaving centers of Ninghsia, Paotou, and Sinkiang. These were in the wool-raising areas that extended through Inner Mongolia into Sinkiang. Their designs were influenced by the Turk and Muslim population.

Clues: Just as Oriental rugs from Iran and Turkey can usually be identified by regional designs, so can Chinese rugs. For example, Ninghsia rugs often used prayer squares, while Paotou designs included over-all patterns of small scale motifs. These range from fretwork and flower-heads to "rice-grain." This region is also known for pictorial rugs, which have stag, horse, and crane scenes. Rugs from Sinkiang, the westernmost province, combine designs from the Turkish and Muslim culture — along with Chinese symbolism. Pomegranate and vase patterns, along with Chinese type mythical objects are also typical.

After the 1920s, the traditional styles and colors disappeared.

Color combinations are one way not only to identify the region, but also the age of Chinese rugs. From the 1920s to the 1940s, new color combinations were introduced. Among them were lime green, lilac, and pink.

At this time, another type of rug was introduced that used Art Deco stylized motifs and bold colors. Current interest in Art Deco furnishings has upped their price.

Another thing to consider, you may pay more for certain colors and designs in one section of the country than in another. How else can I explain my purchase several years ago of a c.1920 Chinese carpet priced at $250? It was leftover from a Florida estate sale. Nobody had wanted it because the ground color was amethyst, with an apple green border, and floral and bird motifs in turquoise and pinks. Yet at the same sale, a Chinese carpet with

Fast forward to a couple of years ago when amethyst and purple were the new "in" colors. A visiting dealer friend from New York visited me in Florida. He offered to "take it off my hands" for $1,500. Wonderful colors," he said.

Question And Answer

A narrow, four drawer French chest, on cabriole legs was a wedding gift to my cousins in 1930 from a Chicago antique dealer. It has a white marble top and inlaid parquetry sides and gilt metal trim. It is stamped "France." Any idea of value?

The "France" stamp shows it was made after 1870. Similar pieces sell at auction for $3,000 or more.

I recently found an old iron Christmas tree holder from the 1920s-'30s in our mother's attic. What could it sell for?

I have seen some priced from $45 to $75 at antique shows.

The Pan-American Washer, patented in 1883, employed this central agitator, which operated back and forth. The bottom-mounted agitators of today's washers employ similar back and forth motion. The wringer was made by the American Wringer Company and patented in 1888. The concept of the agitator is one of a very few inventions that have lasted over 100 years. Today washing machines use an agitator only operated from the bottom by electric motor. -Pasto Agricultural Museum, Penn State University.

USDA Questions STB Proposal

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced that it has submitted comments to the Surface Transportation Board (STB) regarding its proposal to require consolidated financial reporting by commonly controlled U.S. railroads and railroad-related affiliates.

Although agreeing that consolidated reporting would have some benefits, Michael V. Dunn, under secretary for marketing and regulatory programs, expressed concern that consolidated financial reporting could have adverse effects on smaller railroads serving rural areas.

"Consolidated reporting of financial data could result in the reclassification of smaller railroads as either Class I or Class II railroads, which would greatly increase their reporting requirements, as well as impose more stringent merger rules on them," said Dunn. "Although they have preserved rail service to agricultural and other regions, smaller railroads are often only marginally profitable since they typically operate lines having lower railcar traffic densities. Increased regulatory burdens could affect their ability to continue serving rural areas."

The STB is considering changing the reporting rules to ensure conformity with Financial Accounting Standards Board Statement Number 94 and to ensure uniformity and consistency of reports. In addition, the STB believes consolidated reporting would allow it to obtain more meaningful and accurate information on major rail systems operating in the U.S. than can be obtained from separate reports from individual affiliated railroads.

Washington, Wayne, Oneida County Youths Awarded Farm Bureau Scholarships

GLENMONT, N.Y. — Washington County's Laura Borden received the first place prize of the New York Farm Agricultural Youth Scholarship Awards at the farm organization's annual meeting at the Adam's Mark Hotel in Buffalo.

The second place award was given to Cairy Norman of Wayne County and the third place award was given to Kay Furner of Oneida County.

Borden received a $1,000 scholarship, Norman received a $500 scholarship, Furner received a $250 scholarship. All winners and finalists also received certificates and other gifts.

New York Farm Bureau's Agricultural Youth Scholarship is available to high school juniors who live or work on a farm or are involved in agriculture in some way. The winners are selected based upon a submitted application, personal interview, and brief presentation in portraying how agriculture affects their lives.

The judges of this year's competition were Melinda Martin, and extension educator in animal science at Cornell Cooperative Extension; Angie Chudzinski, a retired teacher and promotion and education chairwoman for Erie County; and Allison Cowan, regional manager for Papillon Agricultural Products.

For more information on the Agricultural Youth Scholarship, call New York Farm Bureau at (800) 342-4143.

The M-Series from Kubota Every Tractor You Need

Kubota's line of strong and versatile M-Series performance tractors are ideal for pulling, lifting, cutting, mowing, hay baling and more! Powered by a multi-valve diesel engine for clean, quiet power, the M-Series tractors ranging from 45 to 98 PTO HP, are equipped with a synchro-shuttle transmission and live hydraulic independent PTO. A superbly balanced chassis sharpens maneuverability and a lower center of gravity greatly increases pulling power.

The M-Series tractors also feature easy-to-operate controls, foldable ROPS, deluxe seat and a large ISO-mounted operator deck. When paired with a Kubota high-performance loader, our M-Series tractors are incredibly efficient on the farm, ranch, construction site, dairy, orchard and golf course.

- Handles a wide variety of material – slurry, gutter material, cow manure, even poultry litter.
- V-tank design delivers material to the auger fast.
- Heavy-duty round-core auger produces less drag.
- Double-acting hydraulic cylinder moves auger up and down to keep material flowing.
- Hydraulic gate and specially designed expeller give precise application control.
- Backed by a 10-year warranty against tank rust-through.

See us for all your spreader needs.

Give your cattle everything they need - every last leaf!

With the NDE Vertical Mixer, you won't watch your feed nutrients blow away. Cut your baled hay or baled silage fresh each day right in the mixer! The NDE Vertical Mixer will cut large or small, round or square bales. Then add the other ingredients your ration calls for.

The NDE Vertical Mixer will give your cattle a TRUE TMR that is light and fluffy, and truly palatable, no matter what you add to it by products, commodities, long-stemmed hay, silage, grain Fix Up Your Field Office!

Updating your pickup with new accessories makes your driving experience more enjoyable...and that's also true when it comes to your tractor. Dress it up to till, rake or chop! Adding new upholstery and accessories to your "field office" can increase comfort. Reduce noise, raise resale value, and make long workdays seem shorter!

FREE TRACTOR INSPECTION!

Your tractor is a critical piece of equipment. You need to know it's in good working order to do all the jobs you need. We offer a comprehensive inspection and testing of all of your tractor's major systems, including our Oil Scan™ and Cool Scan™ laboratory analysis of the engine, hydraulic and cooling systems. We will inspect your tractor for FREE!

Any needed repairs are discussed with you after the inspection is complete. If you act now, and these repairs are completed by January 31, 2001 you can take advantage of our 180 days no interest no payment plan. It's a great way to have it fixed now and save a buck or two!

FREE PARTS!

Deer Creek will ensure that critical, over-the-counter parts for your new John Deere Tractor, Combine, Sprayer or Forage Harvester will be in stock when you need them...or they're FREE! POURED
CONCRETE

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement.

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs. more per cubic foot! Far denser. What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic - there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration.

Best of all, thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques, poured solid concrete basements are competitively priced.

- Hog House Walls

Company Offers Farm Show Collector Models

GAP (Lancaster Co.) — For the 11th consecutive year, limited edition collector models will be offered at the state Farm Show.

All models are built with permission and under license of the Pennsylvania Farm Show Commission and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

A vintage Mack cab pulling a flatbed loaded with a simulated load of hay bales is the feature truck this year. It is made by the Ertl Company with the load of hay manufactured in central Pennsylvania. Also included is an International 10-wheeler delivery van featuring the state's colorful "Pennsylvania Produce" logo. The trucks are sold as a set and only 1,250 sets are being made.

For bank collectors, there is a replica of an Ertl '51 Ford F-1 pickup truck. In the early '50s, many family farms in Pennsylvania had a farm pickup. Each bank has 85th Farm Show graphics and certificates.

Allis Chalmers G show tractors are the official show tractor. Built in 1/16th scale, they feature custom-built cultivators made in Pennsylvania.

Beanie-type horse "Pete," the Percheron horse (not by TY), will be for sale. He has color embroidery commemorating the 85th show and is a Farm Show ear tag.

Collector models will be on sale at the '85th Farm Show in the main exhibition building, in the cow barn, and lower level near the main arena.

Hot Water Pressure Washer Is Zero-Discharge System

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. — RGF Environmental, known worldwide for their environmental systems, announces a new, multipurpose wash rack zero discharge system, the WashMaster Mark IV.

RGF's engineering team, utilizing 15 years of experience and more than 15,000 successful applications, has developed an advanced system for end users who want to meet or exceed every environmental, conservation, operational, and financial goal.

By combining the best features of the RGF WashMaster Systems, with the advanced technology of the RGF 700+ gpd dry chamber flash evaporator utilizing RGF's proprietary, patent-pending, award winning Thermo Ox technology, zero discharge is easily achieved. By incorporating a hot water high pressure washer and the RGF Turbo heat exchange into the compact system, the heat produced by the evaporator heats the wash water as well as the facility. The problems of multiple vendors, system incompatibilities, and multiple capital expense are virtually eliminated.

The Mark IV is ideal for the client for whom recycling of wastewater is neither required nor preferred. This system will heat and pressurize the water and then fully eliminate it to a dry ash.

The Mark IV is a hot water high pressure washer, wastewater evaporator, waste oil eliminator, and can be a facility/building heater.

Loaders Offer Key Improvements

RACINE, Wis. — Case IH introduces six new L "5" Series front-end loaders, designed with cycle time and performance improvements that will meet farmers' diverse needs for performance, durability, and serviceability.

"Teamed with a Case IH 'X' Series tractor, an L "5" Series loader will provide farmers with an integrated system for almost any material-handling chore," said Larry Lanie, Case IH marketing manager for utility tractors and loaders. "Depending on a customer's specific needs, we offer standard or deluxe models to match their requirements."

New standard models include the L405, L505, L605 and L705. The new deluxe models are designated as L455, L555, L655 and L755.

"Design changes incorporated into the new loaders specifically address the input we've received from customers," Lanie said.

"The bucket cylinder down force is four times greater than previous models. This is very helpful in operations such as back dragging, hardpan scraping, and feedlot operations."

An improved location for the loader control valve and self-leveling valve provides better routing of hoses and tubes. Also, a new right-hand tower hose guide positions the loader hoses to provide the operator with increased visibility between the tractor's hood and right-hand loader tower. The hose material, Xtratuff™, is resistant to chaffing.

One of the industry's first two-way hydraulic self-leveling systems remains a key feature of these loaders. The system keeps the bucket level during both raising and lowering of the loader boom arm.

Thanks to the exclusive Case IH Quick Coupler attachment, loader operations can increase their versatility and productivity when changing from one attachment to another. The Quick Coupler is standard equipment on all deluxe L "5" Series loaders and optional on standard models.

"Changing attachments has never been easier than with Case IH Quick Coupler technology," said Lanie. "The operator simply releases the spring-loaded locking pin, disconnects one attachment, then drives up to the new attachment and engages the rollback circuit to secure the locking pins."

Mid-mount hydraulic quick couplers have been repositioned and reconfigured for enhanced ease of mounting or dismounting of the loader from the tractor.

Two high-capacity bucket options have been added to the L "5" Series loaders.

• General purpose "square-back" buckets in 72- or 84-inch sizes have five percent greater struck capacities than their predecessor. Bucket mounting is available with either quick coupler or pin-on style.

• Heavy-duty "square-back" buckets in 72-, 84-, or 96-inch sizes have 15 percent greater struck capacities than previous models. Bucket mounting is available with either quick coupler or pin-on style. These buckets also have a heavy-duty grapple attachment. A factory-installed option on the quick coupler version is available.

All Case IH "square-back" buckets feature a unique two-piece back bottom sheet construction, which provides added strength and longer working life of the bucket.

Rural Economy

Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

ALANTA®

A number of the Poly... Patent Pending

The ALANTA Waterbed for cows is a revolutionary product, comfortable, safe and hygienic. It clearly improves your cows' well-being and therefore promotes high milk production. It is the complete stall floor covering for the modern animal husbandry.

WELL MADE
The ALANTA Waterbed is made of top quality rubber with a water-filled compartment in between. GD-Enke gives a 12-year guarantee.

COMFORTABLE
The waterbed molds itself to the cow's shape. No cold in summer and no heat in winter.

SAFE
Thanks to the non-slip rubber upper surface, the cow is gripped firmly and cannot slip off. In this way the ALANTA waterbed keeps damage to hooves to a minimum.

Here's What Some of Your Neighbors Say About ALANTA Waterbeds:

David Bittler, Fleetwood, PA

"We are very pleased with the decision to go with the waterbeds. First calf heifers have adapted exceptionally well and are often lying down within two hours of being put in the stall."

Ichthus Farm, Lititz, PA

"I'm pleased with how the waterbeds retain their comfort over time."

AttentionDairy, Swine & Poultry Producers!*New Products Now Available...

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer these products to meet your nutritional needs. Manufacturing these products ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

GOLDEN PRO 46 XP

This natural, mechanically extruded and expelled soybean product is experiencing great acceptance with local dairymen. A coarse golden colored meal with a 6% fat content. Golden Pro 46 XP is a natural way to bring the value of high by-pass protein into diets that require a lower fat level.

GOLDEN MEAL 40

An 18 percent fat content along with a 40 percent crude protein makes this mechanically extruded meal product a valuable component in a variety of rations. Full fat content gives you a high level of digestible energy, while high temperature extruding ruptures the oil cells for better nutritional absorptions.

CRUDE SOYBEAN OIL

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. A natural alternative to animal fats, this oil provides needed energy in various rations.

To make these products available, and to help you utilize your home raised soybeans

Keystone Mills announces its

Soybean Exchange Program

As manufacturers and distributors of Golden Pro 46 XP and Golden Meal 40, we are anxious for you to try our products. We are offering a soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

153 ACRE DAUPHIN
COUNTY FARM

This farm is ideally located at the base of a mountain range in Northern Dauphin County, (Lykens Valley), near Millersburg. The buildings are set several hundred yards off the main road, creating that perfect Currier & Ives setting everyone dreams about with the mountain as a back drop.
The buildings feature a very well maintained brick center hall farm house with 4 large bedrooms and a large country kitchen. The out buildings consist of a 38x40 Bank Barn, 25x42 heated shop and 60x120
Morton pole building used for equipment storage.
The majority of 100 tillable acres is gently rolling productive farm land with approximately 12 acres of pasture and 41 acres of woodland. This farm would be ideal for vegetable production with it's fertile crop land and abundant water supply for irrigation or it would make a perfect country estate, with it's beautiful setting and buildings.
